Low northeastern U.S. gas usage halts Ansley operation

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
Tennessee Gas Pipeline Co.'s Compressor Station No. 530 near Ansley has temporarily stopped operations apparently for the first time in some 23 years.

The shut down stems from poor economic conditions affecting United States' industries.

Frank Reed, public relations representative for Tenneco, Inc. in Houston, Tex. this week said the Hancock station was shut down at 8:20 a.m. Thursday, Aug. 28.

Tennessee Gas is a division of Tenneco.

He also confirmed reports by informed sources that all of the plant's compressor engines have been turned off because pipeline pressure is at its maximum level which indicates extremely low usage by its north United States customers.

"It's no doubt poor economic conditions do have an influence in this case," Reed stated.

He said although Tennessee Gas has no industrial customers that many of the company's distributors do.

When asked if this is the first time the plant has been shut down due to low usage, Reed said he did not know because daily records of the station's operations since its construction in 1959 would have to be researched to confirm that report or establish the date of a previous stoppage.

But the sources state the station's compressor engines have never all been shut down except for routine maintenance and repairs.

Reed speculated it's apparently been a long time since the station has shut down.

Some 17 Hancock residents operating the plant are still working normal shifts and not scheduled to be laid off in the temporary stoppage, the public relations representative reported.

Reed said he did not know when the station would resume operations, but reported a telephone call from company headquarters in the Ansley facility would be all that would be necessary to resume operations.

However, Reed was sure the station will resume operations when northern winter temperatures drop in a few weeks.

He explained the station compresses natural gas to help move the fuel through pipelines which extend from

The executive director also told of the important role played by the Combined Federal Campaigns which plays an important role in helping Hancock reach its goals.

The agencies supported by the Hancock United Way include Hancock County Emergency Relief Fund, Gulf Coast Mental Health Program,

Bay radio station sale pends FCC ok

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

The owner of WXGR Radio in Bay St. Louis is awaiting Federal Communications Commission approval to sell the station to a South Dakota Baptist minister and his wife.

Jim Odom, WXGR general manager, Tuesday confirmed William C. (Bill)

Garrett of Sildell plans to sell the station to Dr. W.J. and Freda V. Crews of Sioux Falls.

Based on an FCC file available for review by the general public at the station, pending federal approval WXGR will be sold Oct. 1 for $336,000.

The documents state the station format will be changed from the present traditional country format to an inspirational gospel format with emphasis on news, weather and public affairs.

But Odom said the sale price has not been finalized and due to the station's present high ratings the format may not be changed.

"The decision on the format change will be made after Crews takes over," the general manager stated.

Odom said a recent Arbitron ratings survey conducted by WVMi Radio in Gulfport found that station second, WQID Radio in Biloxi first and WXGR third in listenership out of 28 stations on the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

He reported WVMi edged the Bay station out of the second place slot by a 1.1 percent margin.

WXGR is the number one radio station in Hancock County, Odom added.

The general manager said an agree-

Superintendent candidates air positions at political forum

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

All five candidates running for Hancock County superintendent of education attended a political forum Tuesday night to present their goals if elected and answered questions submitted by members of the audience.

Some 60 people attended the three-hour forum at Annunciation School in Kiln sponsored by the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce.

The candidates are seeking the position which was recently vacated by Billy Sills when he pled guilty in County Circuit Court to an embezzlement-fraud charge.

Roger James, Eugene Ladner, Kenneth McCarty, Barney Necaise and Terrell Randolph are the candidates in the Sept. 11 election.

James, now North Bay Elementary

School's principal, said the superintendent should provide school district leadership and correct information to the County School Board so it make proper decisions.

He charged the board has not received proper advice in the past.

James said county voters are responsible for electing competent board members.

He stated he is seeking the office because he loves children whom he described as prized possessions of the community.

Ladner, a former county superintendent, said he would work to provide quality education and his first goal would be to find out the most pressing needs of the district.

McCarty, also a former superintendent, reported his many years of political experience makes him a wise candidate and said he knows how to work with the school board.

He stated rumors he would start the school year in September were not true because it's the board's responsibility to set that date.

The former superintendent said he would work to establish computer science courses for high school students and improve transportation to eliminate students standing on buses.

Necaise, a Bay Junior High School coach and teacher, reported he would like to remove politics from the school system and has not made any promises to anyone during his campaign.

"I don't expect any votes from promises," he stated.

He said he would work to improve

State, local officials review county wastewater contract

By BRENT MACEY

Representatives and attorneys of the three governmental entities in Hancock County met Tuesday in the County Courthouse with representatives of the Bureau of Pollution Control in an attempt to work out details of a agreement which would lay the foundation for establishment of a county wastewater authority.

Once established the authority would oversee all matters related to sewerage treatment in the county.

The agreement should have been completed by Aug. 1. But Caleb Dana, a staff coordinator with the Bureau of Pollution Control in Jackson, noted the only penalty faced by the cities and county in Hancock is a moratorium set down by the BPC which would prohibit areas in the county and cities from connecting to a wastewater treatment plant until the agreement is finalized.

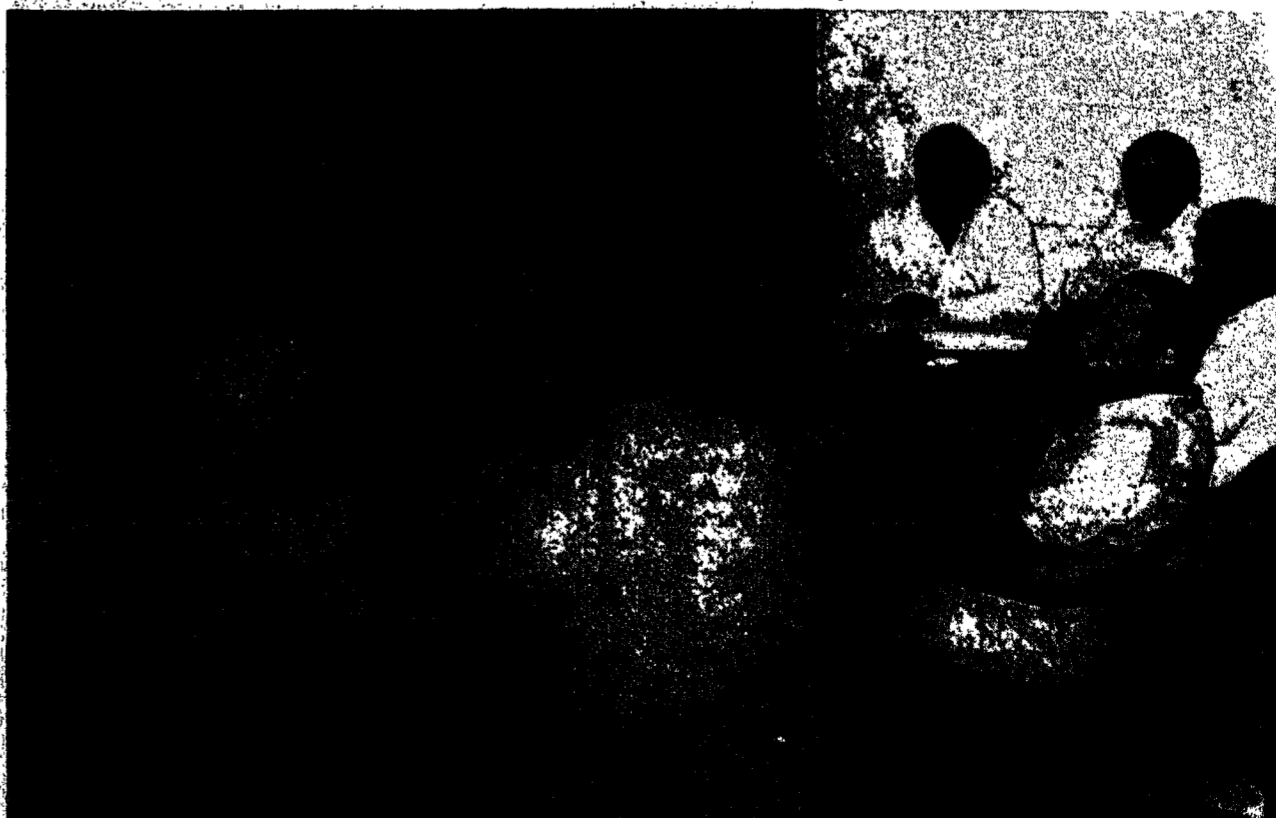

Present at the Tuesday meeting were

Waveland Mayor John Longo, Waveland City Attorney Lucien Gex, Waveland City Engineer Ray Eaton, Bay St. Louis City Clerk Eddie Favre representing the city's interests in the absence of Mayor Larry Bennett, Bay St. Louis City Attorney Joseph Gex, Hancock County Board of Supervisor President A.A. (Dolph) Kellar, County Attorney Walter Gex, Dana and State

SUNK IN BAY—An automobile moves along North Beach Boulevard in Bay St. Louis near the Ulman Avenue intersection Monday afternoon near a shipwreck speedboat sunk in a shallow area of the bay. The Bay Police Department or Hancock County Sheriff's Department Wednesday did not know what happened to the boat, but a spectator at the scene Monday said the speedboat was anchored offshore, broke loose from its mooring, battered riprap at the seawall base by choppy waves where the hull was punctured and the boat sunk just a few feet offshore. The boat was apparently removed from the water late Monday. (Staff photo by Wayne Ducomb Jr.)

WHEAT POPULAR CROP

It looks like wheat production in Hancock County is a crop that's here to stay. We should have another fair-sized crop this year, although many of our farmers may set aside part of last year's acreage to qualify for the U.S. Department of Agriculture's target price.

On a statewide basis, our Extension Grain Specialist Dr. Charles Baskin tells me the State will probably plant about 800,000 acres of wheat this fall if current prices hold. That would compare with a little over 1 million acres last year.

Already, many farmers are asking questions about wheat planting, specifically about varieties and seed supplies. We should have enough seed for grain production. Some of the newer varieties may be in short supply, but enough seed for good, older varieties should be available to plant our desired acreage.

Some newer varieties will be available in limited quantities or available only for seed production. They are Coker 916, Hunter, Terral 800-20, Terral-Norris, Omega 78, Ray, Pike and Fla. 301. Follow these varieties closely. They have good potential in our area in the next few years.

Under the plant variety protection act, the sale of a variety that is protected without proper arrangements with the owner of the variety is a violation of federal law. Farmers can save their own seed and plant as many acres as they like, but they shouldn't sell seed without permission.

FERTILIZE YOUNG PLANTS

If you planted young trees and shrubs this spring, they could probably use another dose of fertilizer about this time. This should last them until next spring.

Mature plants older than three years usually don't need fertilizing but once a year unless a soil test shows otherwise. But younger plantings such as those made this spring need a second application, preferably by Sept. 15. Young and active plants need more nutrients than mature ones.

An empty coffee can with a plastic lid makes a good applicator. Cut holes in the plastic top to make a shaker. You may have to refill several times to apply the amount needed.

After applying, water the plants and soil thoroughly to dissolve the fertilizer and carry it to the roots. Don't use more than the recommended rate, and don't use a fertilizer mixture stronger than 10-10-10.

For information on fertilizer rates and other details, contact the County Extension Office.

FARMWEEK

Wine production, a growing agricultural industry in the state, will be highlighted Aug. 30 on Farmweek. Wine production is up 20 percent over last year with 300 new acres of small vineyards in production. Reporter James Booth talks with grape growers and industry officials about the status of the industry.

PLAN EARLY GRAZING
The high cost of growing

County Agent's Notes

by John Smith

wintergrazing crops makes it necessary to get and hold a good stand on early seedings, according to John W. Smith, County Agent.

Early plantings should be made on fields that have been plowed for several weeks; then prepare a good seedbed before planting. Following helps build the soil moisture reserve for a quick stand and allows plant residue that is plowed, under to decompose.

Where a large amount of vegetation is plowed under, then nitrogen fertilizer applied and the crop planted immediately, a large part of this nitrogen can be lost to the decomposition process.

Every fall we see fields that are prepared, fertilized and planted immediately that grow off slowly due to this nitrogen loss.

Since the cost of nitrogen is a major part of the total fertilizer cost, plan to allow at least two weeks or more for plowed under vegetation to decompose before seeding.

This helps assure the grazing crops will receive the benefit from the nitrogen applied. When preparing a seedbed, break the soil sufficiently to uproot all permanent grass especially bahiagrass and bermudagrass. These grasses will continue to grow unless they are destroyed during seedbed preparation.

They can use up nitrogen needed by young grazing crops and often partially crowd out these seedlings.

To produce high yields from wintergrazing crops, a high level of soil fertility is necessary. Where soil is acid, applying lime is the first fertilizer practice required. Lime and fertilizer according to soil test is available. In absence of a soil test, a general recommendation is 60-70 lbs. of available nitrogen, phosphate and potash per acre (500 lbs. 13-13-13). It is impossible to make an accurate lime recommendation without a soil test.

On fields that have not been limed in several years, the application of one ton of lime per acre would usually be advisable.

However, a soil test from a properly collected soil sample is the only accurate way to determine the current fertility status of each field, so the fertilizer dollar can be applied where it will give the greatest return.

Oats, rye and wheat are the best crops for early planting. Seed 4 bu. (120 lbs.) oats or 2 bu. (112 lbs.) rye or 2 bu. (120 lbs.) wheat per acre when planting alone. The potential for development of high populations of fall armyworms and the possibility of "blast" disease make it a risk to seed ryegrass with early planted small grains.

Armyworms can destroy the young ryegrass growing under small grain before the worm infestation is evident.

If hot, humid overcast conditions occur in September, the potential for "blast" disease on ryegrass is greatly increased. Ryegrass can be topseeded into early planted small grain when cattle are turned in to graze and they will walk the seed into the soil.

The seeding of small grain-ryegrass mixtures is usually best delayed until after mid-September. Suggested seeding rates for the mixtures are 90 lbs. oats, rye or wheat plus 20 to 30 lbs. of ryegrass per acre.

The ideal planting time for ryegrass is late September to early October. Suggested ryegrass seeding rates are 25 clovers are seeded with ryegrass or a small grain-ryegrass mixture, these seeding rates should be reduced and a different nitrogen fertilizer program used. To successfully grow clovers in winter pastures, special production and grazing management programs are necessary that will allow the clover to produce to its potential.

Cultivate all early planted fields to help conserve soil moisture and get a quick uniform stand.

Tomorrow night, a flip of a coin will open the 1982 football season for local high schools.

The Bay High Tigers will entertain the Tomcats of Stone County at Tiger Stadium.

Bay High, 1981 county champs, comes-off one of the best seasons in recent years and Snuffy Smith, head coach should have the Tigers primed for the always powerful Tomcats of Wiggins. Smith feels if the Tigers can get by Stone County they have a good chance of taking the Deep South Conference title.

The 1980 County Champions Hancock North Central Hawks will journey to the Rock-A-Chaw stadium in Bay St. Louis to take-on St. Stanislaus.

This too should be a very good game with veteran coach Irvin Farve at the helm for the Hawks going against the Rock-A-Chaws with Vernon Powell making his debut as head mentor.

The teams are so well-balanced in the conference and area, anyone could be a winner of any game.

The Pass Christian Pirates from across the bridge will be looking at an always strong Vancleave Bulldog eleven.

Coach Bob Lumpkin has a young team, but, the Pirates have had respectable records in recent years.

We know many of the Bay-Waveland residents will have a hard decision to make as to which game they will attend Friday night. All we ask, is for every football fan to support the team of his choice.

This is a long weekend for many folks and it will mean celebrating a little for some.

We urge everyone to please have a safe Labor Day weekend. If you drink a little too much, stay away from driving your car or truck, have someone sober drive you home.

Our local police departments would much rather drive you home drunk than have to investigate an accident which you may cause. Think about it!

The Bottom Line

Candid Answers To Your Questions About Advertising and Business Topics.

By S. GALE DENLEY

Associate Professor of Journalism University of Mississippi

I am fairly familiar with the role of advertising during and following the industrial revolution, but what about the earlier attempts by merchants to get business. Ads aren't that new are they?

Dear AATNAT: No. The earliest known evidence of advertising is a Babylonian tablet of clay, circa 3000 B.C., bearing inscriptions of a shoemaker, an oil merchant and a scribe.

From the ruins of Thebes, in ancient Egypt, exhumed papyrus contained a written notice of reward for return of a runaway slave.

The Greek merchants relied on town criers, sometimes accompanied by musicians, to announce the arrival of ships with special cargo.

The custom spread through Europe and into England. French criers often gave samples such as wine by various innkeepers.

The ruins of Pompeii revealed several items of advertising featuring drawings in stone of hams, cows and shoes.

Newspapers only came about after Gutenberg's movable type for printing was introduced in 1438. Some 40 years later the first ad was printed in English—and handbill of rules for the guidance of the clergy at Easter.

However the first printed ad in a newspaper was in a German news pamphlet in 1525, for a mysterious drug.

The first newspaper as such, printed in English, came out in 1622. The first ad in an English newspaper appeared in 1625.

A recent piece in a trade journal mentioned "target marketing" and the assumption was the reader would be familiar with the term. I wasn't. Dear IW: The author of the article made the same error that many advertisers make.

That is, he assumed, readers would know why they should buy the advertised product, and proceed to give specifications and prices.

Any product purchased is more than a mere object. It may manifest several satisfactions.

For example, a motorcycle may be a means of getting to work. But it may also be a means of demonstrating an adventurous spirit.

Auto makers produce a complete line of models. Some are for those who want a sporty look, some for those who want a family auto, some are for those who want lowest cost, and some for those who want luxury regardless of cost.

Daniel Yankelovich wrote in Harvard Business Review (March-April 1964) that watch buyers might fit in three groups:

- 1) People who want a low price, disposable time-piece,
- 2) People who value craftsmanship and
- 3) People who want useful features, but also meaningful, emotional qualities—i.e. a symbol of an important occasion.

So the approach selling has to be specific. Give a reason to buy.

Price is not enough. Target the audience, and then fashion the appeal to their specific needs and aspirations.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

State Ethics Commission has justified its existence to citizens of Hancock

Dear Sir:

It is with a great feeling of justice and hope that I write this letter, commending the Mississippi State Ethics Commission for their outstanding efforts made in obtaining the recent admission of guilt by Billy D. Sills, the Ex-Hancock County Superintendent of Education.

Mr. Sills pleaded guilty to felony charges of embezzlement-fraud for receiving kickbacks during emergency repairs to the tornado-damaged Gulfview School.

The people of Hancock County had almost given up hope that justice would prevail and some of the taxpayers' money could be restored for the benefit of the school children for which it was intended rather than pad the pockets of greedy politicians.

I would like to commend the Hancock County Sheriff's Department for initiating the investigation into the wrongdoings in connection with the Gulfview School repair.

The efforts of Mr. Ronnie Peterson and his staff are greatly appreciated by the lawabiding citizens of Hancock County.

However, it was realized that the authority of the Sheriff's Office was limited in its investigative endeavor and that the investigation seemed to be at a dead-end.

The State Ethics Commission was contacted as a last hope and effort to see that the investigation would continue.

This is a public thank you to Mr. Larry Burris, executive director of the commission for his diligent effort in taking this matter to its present status.

I would also like to direct the following to the Legislature:

Is a sad state of affairs that it is necessary to have a commission to investigate corruption among our elected officials; however, we need a stronger and more effective Ethics Commission armed with the power to initiate investigations on its own with a majority vote of the commission rather than the required sworn complaint by a third party.

Far too frequently wrongdoings go unnoticed or unchallenged because a third party is unwilling to sign a sworn complaint.

Further, it would seem that a logical and more expedient administration of justice could be had by granting to the commission the power to seek indictments and prosecute same without having to go through the offices of the District Attorney or the Attorney General.

These offices claim to be overloaded with work, and in many cases the local district attorneys are closely associated with, elected by, or relatives to the very people they are obliged to investigate and prosecute and are hesitant to place themselves adversely to the people with whom they have been so closely associated.

It would seem that it is time for the Legislature to wake up to the fact that the State Ethics Commission has proven its worth, especially to the people of Hancock County.

In this one case four people have been indicted on criminal charges, three of whom have been found guilty.

The Attorney General's Office has filed a civil suit against the Hancock County School Board members and the ex-superintendent Billy D. Sills for the return of over $340,000 to the "poor little children of Hancock County."

I would like to especially thank Senator Martin Smith for his efforts on behalf of the Ethics Commission in the Legislature.

If more of our Legislators would realize that the taxpaying public is entitled to a stronger commission, armed with authority to seek indictments and prosecute the people who should be prosecuted, then and only then would they cut down on white-collar crime.

Again I reiterate my commendation of Mr. Burris and the State Ethics Commission for their efforts on behalf of the taxpayers of Hancock County.

Dear Sir:

I am very much interested in the article which appeared on your Editorial Page of the Thursday, August 26 edition of The Sea Coast Echo dealing with drunk driving legislation. I had not seen the report on the legislation in Congress dealing with incentives.

I am presently involved in trying to determine if additional improvements need to be made in our drunk driving laws.

In fact, I recently wrote to General (Signey B.) Berry, (Mississippi Commissioner of Public Safety) requesting his recommendations and (I) enclose a copy of his letter back to me. I am sure that he will have some very good suggestions when he returns from the conference he mentions in his letter. I would imagine he will also have some details on the Federal Incentive Grants.

Again, I appreciate the article which has brought this matter to my attention.

CONSUMER REPORT

A Service of the Consumer Protection Division of the Office of Bill Allain, Attorney General
P.O. Box 220, Jackson, MS 39205 (601-354-7130)

HEALTH SPAS: EXERCISE YOUR RIGHTS

Attorney General Bill Allain says that while many people regularly use and enjoy health spas, others have written the Consumer Protection Division of his office with complaints. Allain states that the most frequent complaints concern high pressure sales tactics, misrepresentations about the facilities and services, and spas that go out of business. You may avoid disappointment, however, if you find out about the spa's fees, contractual requirements, and facilities before you join. Here are some suggestions for comparison shopping for a health spa.

Inspect the Spa. Visit during the hours you would normally use the spa. See if the spa is overcrowded during that time. Notice whether the facilities are well-maintained. Inspect everything for cleanliness, and also note the condition of the equipment. You may want to ask some of these questions:

—Is there a trial period during which I can sample services but not be obligated to join?
—How many members do you have?
Is there a limit to the number of people who can join? Many spas set no membership limit. So while the spa may not be crowded during your visit, this condition may change—especially if the spa is new.

BE A GOOD CITIZEN:

People tend to litter where litter has already accumulated. Throwing trash from an automobile—be it a glass bottle, a metal container, or paper products—is like saying to someone else: throw yours, it's alright. Litter is always ugly.

Hancock County Chamber of Commerce
Clean-Up and Beautification Committee

—What hours will I be able to use the spa? A spa may be open all week, but may be limited to men on some days and women on others.

—What qualifications or special training do your instructors have?
Consider Contracts Carefully. Some spas ask you to join right away. You might be offered special time-limited rates as an incentive. But if you wait a few days, you may make a better decision. Take the contract home and read it carefully. Before you sign it, see if you can answer these questions:

—Is everything the salesperson promised written in the contract?
—Is there a "cooling-off" period?
Some spas give you several days to reconsider your decision to join after you have signed the contract.
—Can you get a refund if you need to cancel?
—Can you join for a short time only?
—Can you afford the payments if you sign a long-term contract?

Before you join a spa, you may want to contact your Consumer Protection Division of the Attorney General's Office to find out if they have received any complaints about the spa.

If problems arise after you join, contact Attorney General Bill Allain, Consumer Protection Division, P.O. Box 220, Jackson, Mississippi 39205. Telephone: (601) 354-4244.

READY FOR OCCUPANCY—White oaks shade the entrance to Chateau de St. Louis Apartments at 515 Third Street in Bay St. Louis. Joan Breeden, owner and manager, reports the 14 modern unfurnished all-electric apartments were recently completed and are ready for occupancy by self-sufficient senior citizens. The complex is designed to reflect creolecolonial architecture and includes elevators, two lobby areas and a meeting room. The apartments feature wall-to-wall carpeting throughout most rooms, and specially-designed bathroom fixtures. For lease information telephone Breeden at 467-9293. (Staff photo by Wayne Ducomb Jr.)

Diamondhead man killed in motorcycle accident

The body of a 30-year-old Diamondhead man who was killed in a motorcycle accident in the subdivision Monday has been shipped from Edmond Fahey Funeral Home in Bay St. Louis to James F. Knoetgen Funeral Home in Morton, Penn. for burial and services.

Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson reported Wednesday that Patrick James Malloy, of 9738 Pokai Place was killed at approximately 12:50 a.m. Monday night when he struck a Palm tree while traveling on his motorcycle on Diamondhead Drive East.

Peterson said three motorcycles were traveling in a line down the road with Malloy in the lead.

According to a sheriff's department report submitted by officers Albert Beal and Russell Watts, Malloy apparently struck some loose gravel on the road and lost control of his motorcycle.

Peterson said the report states Malloy was thrown from his cycle some 17 feet.

"The bike then apparently ran over him and skid and additional 72 feet" before coming to a rest, the sheriff added.

On that same day at approximately 8:20 a.m., Rita Jackson, 28 of Diamondhead Drive North was returning from Slidell Memorial Hospital where she is a nurse when she apparently fell asleep at the wheel and struck a tree.

Mrs. Jackson, who is in the last month of pregnancy, suffered a fractured knee and lacerations of her arms and legs.

Her condition was stabilized at Hancock General Hospital, and she was later transferred to the USAF Medical Center at Keesler, he said.

POINTING GUN CHARGE

Two New Orleans men were held on multiple charges Tuesday after a Hancock County citizen reported that one of them aimed a gun at him as he tried to pass their car on Miss. 603.

Investigator Alvin Ladner of the Hancock County Sheriff's Office said an all-points bulletin was issued about noon Monday after the citizen filed his complaint. The vehicle was stopped on Miss. 603 at Interstate 10.

Arrested were Isaac Dupre, 33, and Samuel Gordon, 32, both of New Orleans. Dupre, in the county jail under $5,000 bond, is charged with two counts of possession of a controlled substance and carrying a concealed weapon. Gordon, under $10,000 bond, is charged with driving without a license, two counts of possession of a controlled substance, carrying a weapon after conviction of a felony and pointing a deadly weapon.

Cooking up a storm

By Katy McGuire Caire

The smoke signals are all along the coast this Labor Day weekend, last big holiday of the warm season, as we happily turn to the old form of cooking that goes way back to the cave men - cooking outdoors over the fire.

From the smallest improvised charcoal grill to the fanciest set-up, it's every cook for himself or herself, each with special ways and secret sauces.

Is there a nose alive that doesn't tingle with pleasure at the scent of that smoke from the dripping meat or chicken or whatever's cooking away on the grill or in the pit?

There are many arguments as to the origin of the word "barbecue." Some claim that it comes from the French "barbe a queue" - which meant a pig or lamb cooked "from whiskers to tail." Others say the word derived from the Spanish "barbacoa" - a frame made of sticks, upon which meat was set for roasting over a deep pit which held the fire.

Still others say that the barbecue came to our country by way of Latin America - the "churasco." Wherever it started, it's a tradition in America's South and Southwest, a heritage also from shepherds and cowboys of earlier days.

Our favorite barbecue foods are ribs, pork chops and chickens, all well basted with a tangy sauce. Since every cook or his brother, not to mention his various assorted relatives, has his very own special sauce and method, I leave you to your choice.

But, for a special holiday splurge, while the hamburgers or ribs are a-cooking, why not keep the hungry horde partially satisfied as well as busy, with tasty barbecued shrimp - with their hands busy getting the shrimp out of the shell, and their mouths busy munching, they're too occupied to so much kibitzing of the chef! So, here's

BARBECUED SHRIMP

For every two pounds of shrimp, in the shell, allow two sticks of butter or margarine (or half butter, half margarine) along with three crushed cloves of garlic (increase amounts to suit the crowd and their appetites).

Rinse the unshelled shrimp under cold water, then let them drain for about an hour. Break off the heads, leaving the shell. Melt the butter or margarine in a saucepan, stir in the crushed garlic. Pour over the shrimp in a bowl, sprinkle lavishly with coarse pepper or lemon-pepper, loads of it, and salt if you must. Toss to coat the shrimp.

Grill in a basket over, as medium heat as possible, and turn, cooking just till the shrimp blush a pretty pink as the shells start browning. Serve at once, sprinkled with parsley if you like. Pass the paper napkins - towels, better - and don't forget the hot French bread. We like to do ours in one of the hinged grill baskets such as are used for hot dogs, but you can do them on the grill, itself.

If you're not in the mood to fire up the barbecue grill or pit, just line a pan with the shrimp, pour the sauce over, and toss under a hot broiler for just a few minutes. And if you insist on the less messy method, you can, of course, shell the shrimp, but you lose much of the flavor that way.

Book Review

By JOE PILET

Bedford Shelmire Jr. is a medical doctor and practices dermatology. In fact, he has the reputation of being America's most prominent dermatologist!

He also writes books. "The Art of Looking Younger" and "The Art of Being Beautiful at Any Age" are two of his best sellers.

But the real jewel - the book that can save you a great deal of money, make you look better and feel better and save you from figure shaping frauds is entitled "The Doctor's Overnight Beauty Program."

This book is available at the City-County Public Library.

The book is well indexed and includes topics of interest to both sexes and at all ages. Part one covers skin care where plain old mineral oil is recommended for the pre-cleanse, and castile soap for the wash. This book explains why the best skin, scalp and hair care obtainable is also the least expensive.

Figure shaping is another part of the book, recommending common sense diets and proper exercise and frowning on the expensive places that massage, wrap, steam, cream, or whirlpool your body.

Giving the beauty industry a well deserved slap on the wrist, Dr. Shelmire said, "The beauty industry, which over the last few decades has grown tremendously is a true dichotomy, the Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde of the commercial world. This is something that really can't be said of any other major industry. While blatantly misrepresenting worthless goods and services and stealing billions of dollars from consumers each year, it is at the same time helping the average person create genuine beauty."

A portion of the book is devoted to proper uses of eye shadow, blush, rouge, eye liner, lip colors, powders, and bases. The proper technique for applying make up is well illustrated.

Of eye shadow, Dr. Shelmire said, "Eye shadow is the least trustworthy of all makeup items. It will often look fine, even great, at home and then turn heavy and garish in other surroundings, under other lighting conditions. You can usually avoid this pitfall by minimizing the amount of shadow you apply during the day."

He further explained that it is a good idea to completely avoid the frosted or iridescent eye shadows during the day. Color preferences?

While admittedly a bit of a personal prejudice, the doctor said, "Those colors occupying the green-blue end of the spectrum, even when used with restraint, frequently seem to create an effect that at best is exotic, and at worst, tacky."

There are formulas for making shampoo, rinse, and finishing lotion. There are pages devoted to calories counting and there are suggested menus. There are tips on posture improvement, too. The book is authoritative and it's easy reading.

Several other excellent books on grooming are to be found on the shelves at the City-County Library.

REAL VIEWS ON REAL ESTATE

BUILDERS ENCOURAGE PURCHASE BY OFFERING BUY DOWNS

QUESTION: A real estate ad in our newspaper is advertising new homes for sale by a builder with a "buy down." The ad says that the monthly payments would be less. What is the builder doing and is it legal? A. J., Vicksburg

ANSWER: Dear A. J. As you probably know, in this day and time the biggest barrier to buying a home is not necessarily the cost of the home. It is the cost of financing the home.

To help a buyer get over this barrier some builders are offering new homes for sale with financing made favorable through what is commonly called a "buy down." Buy downs are legal and, as you will see, can make it possible to purchase a normally unaffordable house. Here is how it works:

A buyer applies for a standard mortgage from a lender at, say, 16 percent interest for 30 years. For a $60,000 loan this would result in monthly mortgage payment of $807.

The builder pays the lending institution a fee for the top 2, 3, or 4 percent of the loan for two, three or five years.

Thus, the builder "buys down" the interest rate and the buyer's mortgage payments are reduced for the first few years. In the above example, the buy down could be three percent for two years, which means that for those two years the monthly mortgage payment is $667, a savings of $143 per month and more than $3,400 over the two year period covered by the buy down.

During that initial buy down period, it is hoped that the homeowner's income will increase enough to support the higher payments after the builder's subsidy ends.

You should also be aware that since buy down is an actual cost incurred by the builder, he may be perfectly willing to accept less for the house in lieu of the buy down.

Such an offer would certainly be attractive to you if alternative financing is available at an interest rate competitive with the buy down rate.

A lender will be happy to explain this to you.

For answers to your questions, write Dr. Dennis Tosh, P. O. Box 295, University, Ms. 39677.

A thought for meditation from our pastor, Father Lambert Stack, ST—

"In the pursuit of happiness half the world is on the wrong scent. They think it consists in having and getting, and being served by others. Happiness is really found in giving and serving others."

—Henry Drummond

Patrol wants more than a few good men

The search is on for qualified Mississippians who want to become members of the Highway Patrol.

Chief Donald Butler announced Friday that applications are being sought from anyone between 23 and 32-years-old who has a high school education or its equivalent.

Butler said graduates of a four-year college or university could be employed as troopers when they become 21-years-old.

Have a question?

Call your library!

CITY-COUNTY LIBRARY

467-5282

"Applicants for the Highway Patrol are required to pass rigid physical and mental tests," Butler said. "They must also meet high moral standards by passing a thorough background check."

A Highway Patrol cadet training program is due to begin in March, 1983. Butler said applications should be submitted now because it takes several months to process them. The deadline for applying for the March, 1983 school is October 4, 1982.

Highway Patrol training classes are between three and four months long. Cadets are trained in all areas of law enforcement and are commissioned state troopers upon graduation.

"While cadets are training, the state pays them $580.67 per month," Butler said. "Upon graduation, a state trooper's salary is at least $1,111.07 per month."

Butler said the Highway Patrol also has an excellent retirement and medical insurance program, a liberal sick leave and vacation policy and other benefits.

"We are looking for men and women who can uphold our tradition as well-trained, professional law enforcement officers," Butler said. "We are looking for qualified men and women of all races."

People interested in a career as a Mississippi State Trooper should write or visit the personnel officer in Jackson or contact Highway Patrol stations located in Jackson, Greenwood, Batesville, New Albany, Starkville, Meridian, Hattiesburg, Gulfport or Brookhaven.

Letters of inquiry may be sent to: Personnel Officer, Post Office Box 958, Jackson, MS 39205.

STRONG FAMILY REUNION—Approximately 150 relatives, representing six generations of Charles M. Strong descendants gathered for their second annual family reunion recently at Buccaneer State Park. Many came from Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas and as far away as Virginia, North Carolina and California for this "gathering of the clan". The day's events included registration, socializing, a picnic (with plenty of boiled shrimp and crabs), picture-taking, and discussion of charts showing family lineage dating back generations to 1561. Also on display was family memorabilia, jewelry, pictures and documents. Of special interest was a 1900 U.S. Census badge worn by Charles M. Strong as census enumerator of Bay St. Louis for that year. Also, of interest was an authentic hand written poem written by Charles M. Strong about his mother in 1879. Awards of copies of the Strong Coat-of-Arms was presented to winners in categories of: oldest Strong attending; oldest grandmother; grandparent with the most grandchildren; married the longest; traveled the farthest; brought most people; most beautiful; and ugliest. The latter award was won by Roy Strong Sr. of Lafayette, La. who was going to tell wife Frieda (who was unable to attend) that it was won for being most beautiful. Those interested in obtaining pictures of family gathering may contact Ms. Peggy Watkins at 452-2788. Charles M. Strong, born Jan. 1845, Fla. came to Hancock County on frequent visits at an early age, as his maternal grandparents lived in the Pearl River area. They were General George H. Nixon and Rebecca Bracy Nixon. Charles married Louise C. Frere (born July 1848) of St. Mary's Parish, La. and settled permanently in Bay St. Louis around 1874-75. Until his death in April, 1915, Charles was well-known here. A man identified with the politics of the community and who from time to time held several offices under the patronage of the Federal Government. He was a justice of the peace here for years. The couple had seven children; two daughters, Beale and Nina, and five sons; Charles (Jack), Bonzana (Bonny), Albert, Edward (Eddie), and William (Willie). His descendants now number in the thousands, many of whom have remained in this area, others have made their homes throughout the United States, from the west coast of California to the east coast of North Carolina, in Michigan, Florida, and Canada. RECENT DISCOVERY—Robert Redford narrates "The Sun Dagger," a one-hour documentary on the recent discovery of a centuries-old calendar, to be broadcast at 4 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 4, on the Mississippi ETV Network. About 1,000 years ago the Anasazi Indians built and inhabited Pueblo Bonito, the beautiful village in Chaco Canyon, New Mexico. Three hundred years later they left behind them exquisite ruins and a scientific wonder. No one knows why. In the summer of 1977, Anna Sofaer, an artist studying ancient Pueblo rock carvings, discovered a sophisticated centuries-old solar calendar that, according to Science 80 magazine, changes forever history's perception of America's early Indian colonists. "The Sun Dagger" brings to light this astronomical and geometrical marvel that some scientists have asserted ranks in significance with the Pyramids and Stonehenge. The film follows a return expedition to the site to test the theory that the sun calendar marked not only summer solstice, but winter solstice, spring and fall equinox and the 19-year cycle of the moon.

Harrison Democrats host cruise, plan fete

As the Pan American Clipper pulled into Biloxi late Friday evening, everyone on board agreed that it has been a great night for the Democrats.

The occasion was a two hour moonlight cruise hosted by the Harrison County Democratic Executive Committee for officials and candidates of the Democratic party in Harrison County. More than 100 people turned out for an evening of fun and fellowship.

It's just great to see so many Democratic elected officials," beamed Representative Alan Santa Cruz.

"I'm amazed that we could all come together like this while in the deepest, darkest Republican recession," added Lynn Havens, Public Service Commissioner for the Southern District.

District Attorney Albert Necaise was equally amazed at the "tremendous turnout."

"This is just what we've been needing to galvanize support for Democratic nominees running in this state," said James Thomas, Thomas is the Democratic candidate for circuit judge.

Ellis Taylor agreed. Taylor, chairperson of the Harrison County Committee to Re-elect Senator John Stennis, mingled through the crowd passing out Stennis buttons and bumper stickers, garnering enthusiastic support for "the man who has done more for this state than any other in Mississippi."

Near the close of the event, Lucimarian Roberts, chairperson of the Harrison County Democratic Executive Committee, led the group in rousing cheers for the party, its members and its goals.

Other public officials who attended the function included Sheriff Leroy Hobbs, Corner Ed Little, Representatives Jim Simpson and Joe Rouse, Commissioner R.C. Randall, Judges Ruble Griffin, Gaston Hewes Jr., Tony Anglada, and Calvin Sawh; Supervisor C.T. Switzer, Chancery Clerk Nicky Creel, Tax Assessor Jim Wetzel, Alderman Ron Elias, Biloxi Council members Mary Carpenter and Michael Estes.

Included in the activities for the day will be food, drinks, sales booths, games, speeches, and music.

A benefit tennis tournament for mixed doubles will be held. There is an entry fee of $10 and players must supply their own equipment. To enter call 452-2770, or 374-4349, after 6 p.m. Persons who want to participate in the egg throwing contest should register at the contest table when they get to the park.

LABOR DAY EVENT

The committee will sponsor a commemorative celebration in honor of former President of the United States Franklin D. Roosevelt on Labor Day Monday at War Memorial Park in Pass Christian.

Included in the activities for the day will be food, drinks, sales booths, games, speeches, and music.

A benefit tennis tournament for mixed doubles will be held. There is an entry fee of $10 and players must supply their own equipment. To enter call 452-2770, or 374-4349, after 6

LARGEST CROWD

The largest crowd ever to see a Mississippi State football game came in 1978 when the Bulldogs met Alabama in Birmingham, Ala., before 74,217. A crowd of 71,303 when MSU met LSU in Baton Rouge last year has been the second-largest turnout to date.

Persons who want to participate in the egg throwing contest should register at the contest table when they get to the park.

A special feature of the day will be a dunking booth. A number of "political officials" have already volunteered to be the "dunkies."

Specials will begin at 3 p.m. Drawing for a television set will be held at 6 p.m. when the celebration ends.

All democrats are encouraged to attend. There will be fun and entertainment for all ages. Activities will begin at 11 a.m.

Assistant Attorney General James Palmer.

Much of the discussion focused on financial aspects of the union and consideration of how costs should be broken down when and if other areas of the county connect to established treatment facilities.

All members at the meeting agreed that Waveland should be reimbursed some $109,000 if other areas of the county connect to an existing treatment plant in that city.

Longo and Lucien Gex explained that Waveland paid that additional $109,000 when the Waveland plant was constructed. He noted the money was used to construct the plant large enough to handle some 1.67 million gallons of wastewater daily, although Waveland's treatment needs average only .533 million gallons daily.

No mention was made of the question of veto power.

In the past, Bay St. Louis has requested all authority representatives have veto power.

However, Dana said after the meeting that he thought the three entities would create an agreement which would define each others roles so precisely that 'they won't need a veto power.'

"At this point it appears the issue has been dropped," he said.

Louisiana offshore wells through the county northeastward to Columbus and northwest Alabama to Tennessee where the '500 Line' links with other pipelines from Texas.

Those lines then extend northward to provide natural gas to the mid-Atlantic and New England states.

The Ansley station is one of several compressor facilities located every 100 miles along the pipeline route, Reed

An agreement developed by Harrison County in forming its wastewater authority is being used as a prototype by local officials attempting to formulate an agreement for this county.

State and local officials at the meeting spent most of the time examining each paragraph in the 18 page Harrison County agreement attempting to mold it to fit this county's needs.

Dana noted after the meeting that the Harrison County agreement, which has not yet been approved by the BPC, was taken from a Jackson county agreement which the BPC has approved.

In addition to finalizing this agreement, Dana noted Hancock County must also finalize an 'operations agreement' before Nov. 1, of this year.

He said that agreement will concern who will oversee treatment plant operations and set down procedures each entity will be expected to follow in case of an emergency.

A basic plan of how each city intends to treat its own sewerage must also be developed.

Both agreements and the plan must meet with the approval of the BPC and the Environmental Protection Agency and be signed by the Mississippi Gov. William Winter before Hancock will be eligible to receive federal funds for construction and expansion of treatment plants.

revealed.

He did not know if other compressor stations along the line are also temporarily inoperative.

He revealed Tennessee Gas owns a 13,000-mile U.S. pipeline network.

The 500 Line was constructed in the late 1950's and a parallel line-boosting its gas transportation ability was built in the early 1970's.

available for review by the general public Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. at the station's offices located just off Blue Meadow Road.

The FCC file lists Miller and Fields of Washington, D.C. as the law firm handling the transaction.

Odum also noted the station will retain the same call letters.

WXGR is at 1190 kilohertz on the AM band and is a 5,000-watt nondirectional clear channel which reaches east to Panama City, Fla.; north to Hattiesburg; west to Baton Rouge, La.; and southwest to Houma and New Orleans, La., Odum said.

"If we go to the gospel format we will be the strongest station of this type in a 1,500-mile area," he stated.

The general manager said he has not yet met Crews, but the Baptist minister is planning to visit the station in two-three weeks.

Crews is pastor of a Sioux Falls church, Odum added.

RECORD SWIM

A documentary following 58-year-old James (Doc) Counsilman's record swim across the English Channel, making him the oldest to ever make the swim, can be seen at 2 p.m., Sunday, September 5, on the Mississippi ETV Network.

"Doc: The Oldest Man in the Sea" documents Counsilman's 13-hour, 7-minute journey that broke the record set by a 55-year-old Scot in 1951.

The half-hour program covers his departure from Shakespeare Beach near Dover to his close call with a Russian freighter to the shaky steps that completed his journey.

He is also seen training in a lake near his Bloomington, Ind., home. In a practice session with his Indiana University swim team and working out to prepare for the challenge. Counsilman's own words provide the major part of the film's narration.

school facilities throughout the county. Necaise cited his work experience as one credential for the position.

Randolph, another former superintendent, said he would work to improve the district's image, stop social promotion of failing students, promote a teacher salary increase, revise school curriculum, support compulsory education and a state-supported kindergarten program, provide better leadership and take politics out of education.

He labeled himself as being a controversial superintendent in the past because he fought for the children, 18th Section land leasing reform, cafeteria improvements, a bond issue for a construction of a southern Hancock high school and defended the position of patrons.

The candidates then answered questions which were submitted to a Chamber screening committee and selectively presented to the candidates.

Question: What do you think about the board hiring relatives for positions in the school district instead of qualified persons?

All the candidates basically said qualified persons should be employed for all district positions whether a person is a relative or not.

But James also recommended that principals recommend qualified employees for their schools, but limit the number of board relatives.

Question: What will be your first priority if elected superintendent?

United Way

Mississippi Council of Epilepsy, Inc., American Red Cross - Hancock County Chapter, Hancock County Blood Bank, Senior Citizen Programs, Retired Senior Volunteer Program RSVP, and Catholic Social and Community Services.

Other agencies are Salvation Army, Goodwill Industries, U.S.O. (Worldwide), Girl Scouts - Gulf Pines Council, Boy Scouts - Cypress District, YMCA, and Firemen's Doll and Toy Fund.

Breaux urged the help of everyone for the campaign saying the goal of $40,000 could be reached with everyone doing their share.

The invocation was given by Rev. Willis Britt and the Benediction by Rev. Charles Clark, both directors of the United Way.

The solicitation for the United Way is done by volunteers.

The United Way of Hancock County campaign and operating expense runs approximately seven percent. The major expenses are postage and printing of the campaign literature.

Donations to the drive are made by individuals, payroll deductions, commercial and civic organizations and the Combined Federal Campaigns.

In 1982 the YMCA has been added as an agency supported by the local United Way.

The YMCA has had several programs in Hancock County with plans calling for the possible construction of a permanent center in the area in the future.

Randolph reiterated he would work to improve the district's image and improve education.

Necaise said he would look forward to the future and promote better education.

McCarty reported he would improve drug and alcohol awareness classes for students, build additional classrooms and purchase more school busses.

Ladner said he would build more classrooms and purchase more busses. James pledged to restore public confidence in the superintendent because that trust is needed to generate funds to improve district schools.

Question: How do you plan to improve the image of district in view of the scandals of recent years?

Necaise stated, "We've got to reach out to the people and coordinate parents and get them more involved in education."

McCarty said the people of the county should promote honesty in government and if elected he will perform all his duties honestly.

Ladner recommended that legal advice be sought from the board attorney more often.

James stated, "A lot of hard honest work, community input and God's blessing."

Randolph recommended honesty, hard work and a community task force as a remedy.

He said citizens and parents must become more interested in the school district.

Young Tigers to face veteran Tomcats Friday

By BRENT MACEY

"I think Stone is going to be the team to beat, and if we can get by them then I think we've got a good chance of going all the way," Bay High School Head Football Coach Snuffy Smith said about the Tigers first season game coming up this Friday at 7 p.m. in Tiger Stadium.

"Stone is one of the biggest teams (in terms of size) and the toughest, Vancleave is ranked second," Smith stated.

The rest are about the same in size, (the Bay included)," he said.

"He noted the Stone County Tomcats lost only three defensive line men and one good running back at the end of last year.

That experience and their size make them the most formidable team in the Deep South Conference this year, Smith thinks.

The Tigers, on the other hand are starting the season with an inexperienced ball club; having lost 11 lettermen from last year and facing the upcoming season with 10 returning lettermen, many of which are inexperienced.

But Smith noted several positive factors in the Tiger's favor.

They are dedicated, they can hit hard and they think they can win."

"That's 90 percent of it. Bay High believes they can win. It took a long time to instill the feeling we can beat anybody that we play, and I feel it's the main thing going for them," he said.

Although most of the Bay High players are inexperienced, Smith feels he has some top notch athletes who are developing to be some of the best on the Gulf Coast.

Junior Quarterback David McIver, is one such player.

Smith noted the six-foot, two-inch 185 pounder starting quarterback has both speed and passing ability as well as having the height to spot receivers.

"He's going to need polishing, but he's got as good athletic ability as I've seen since I've been coaching here," Smith said.

Mark Johnson, Tiger tight end, may be the number one target for McIver this year.

The six-foot, three-inch 199 pound Junior has the height to pose problems for the defense ends and also provide a good size target for McIver.

But if Johnson has trouble getting in the clear, Smith noted following players will seeing action too.

They include Michael Lewis, a five-foot eight-inch 140 pound junior who may be switching off as running back or split end.

Smith noted Lewis has "superb speed" and as a result is a real threat for the long passing game.

Five-foot, seven-inch 130 pound Junior Darrin Smith will also be expected to be on the receiving end of McIver's passes.

Smith is one of the few returning Tigers with experience and Smith noted the split end has "excellent hands."

Other Tigers who will assist as either split or tight ends include Willie Harvey, a five-foot, nine-inch 145 pound junior; Jody Spencer, a six-foot, one-inch 161 pound senior; Tony Mannion, a five-foot, nine-inch 146 pound junior; Troy Ottott, a five-foot, nine-inch, 149 pound junior; and Steve Goscinski, a five-foot, four-inch, 135 junior.

In the back field, The Tigers are "as well off as we've ever been and maybe even better," Smith said.

"They (the running backs) are all strong runners and power backs," he claims.

Charles Hawkins, a five-foot, eight-inch 175 pound senior is expected to start Friday as fullback.

While Mike Proulx, a five-foot, 11-inch 183 pound senior, a returning letterman from a guard position last year, will be at the tail or halfback slot along with Harold Gillum, a five-foot, 10-inch, 188 pound junior.

Randy Bounds, a five-foot, nine-inch 151 pound senior will be returning from last year as offensive center for the squad.

Jerry Head, a five-foot, 11-inch, 186 pound sophomore may start Friday as left guard on the offensive line, although Smith noted a five-foot, nine-inch, 158 pound sophomore Philip Hart is pushing for the position.

Tim Proulx, a five-foot, eight-inch, 185 pound junior is expected to start as right guard.

Other Tiger players looking for action as guards include: Gene Griffin, a five-foot, ten-inch, 150 pound sophomore; and Jay Ginn, a five-foot, six-inch, 183 pound sophomore.

Eugene Ramond, a five-foot, 11-inch 190 junior, will be starting left tackle while Kevin James, a five-foot, ten-inch, 168 pound sophomore may be starting in the right tackle slot.

Other Tiger tackles include five-foot, 10-inch, 205 pound senior Mark Davis, who may be doing some place kicking for the Tigers, and Bobby Winchester, a five-foot, 10-inch, 194 pound sophomore; and Jeff Barrett, a six-foot, one-inch, 283 pound senior.

As has almost always been the case with the Tigers, the team lacks depth, Smith noted.

This year the at least seven or eight Tigers can be expected to be playing both ways.

Rock-A-Chaws open against Hancock

By RANDY PONDER

The St. Stanislaus Rock-A-Chaws will open the 1982 football season Friday night, hosting county rival Hancock North Central.

Under the direction of first year head coach Vernon Powell, the Rocks will field a young and basically inexperienced team. Only four starters return from the talent laden 1981 club. Most observers had selected that team to win the newly formed Deep South Conference but a lackadaisical performance resulted in a disappointing 3-6 record.

"We have to rely on quickness and not making mental mistakes," coach Powell said of his players.

"The boys have a great attitude, we don't ever have to tell them to hustle, they're sprinting all the time in practice," Powell added.

"We have good leadership on the team. A new offense or defense doesn't mean a thing, it's the players on the field that make it work," the Rock coach stated.

Kickoff is set for 7:30 p.m. for the Hancock game.

"The Hawks have a good team. You can't key on any one person, they have an excellent backfield," Powell commented.

"We'll be up for the game. It's the first of the year, it's a rival, if we can't get up for this game, then we're in trouble."

Guerrero scores boxing victory

Tony Guerrero, of the Bay-Kiln-Waveland Boxing Club, scored his first ring season victory in Biloxi International Plaza Saturday by defeating Clint (the Mule) Webster of Biloxi.

The 11-year-old Waveland resident, fighting in the 85 pound junior division, knocked Webster down twice during the three round bout and won by decision.

The night before in Ocean Springs, Guerrero was victorious in the opening of the boxing season, Guerrero was less fortunate at the hands of Wayne Karl of Waveland, who was fighting for the Gulfport Boxing Club.

Karl, who is several years older than Guerrero and a former boxer with the B-K-W, defeated Guerrero by decision after three hard fought rounds.

Cory Johnston, also of the B-K-W, fought Chad Parker of the Ocean Springs Boxing Club both nights.

After losing to Parker Friday, the Saturday fight was called in the second round after the referee gave Johnston the standing eight count.

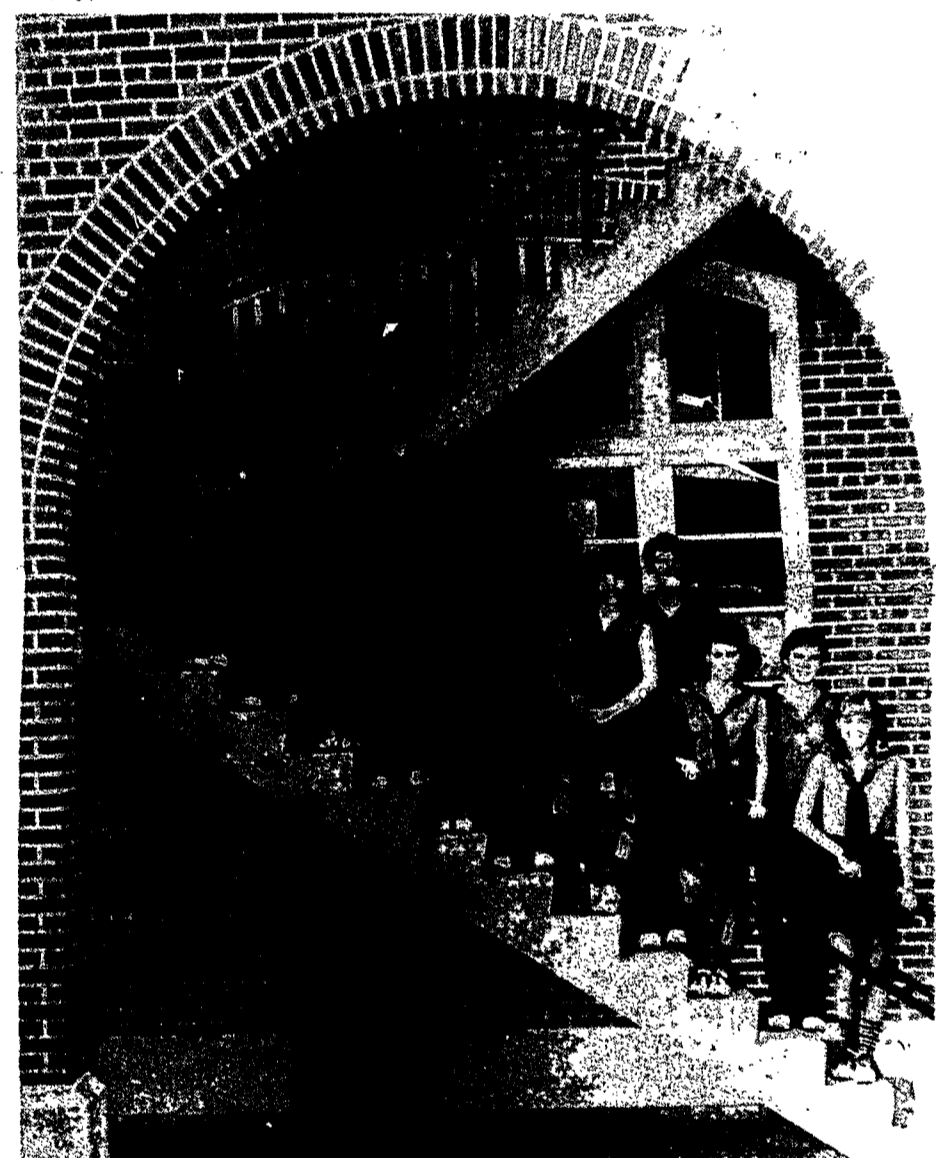

Also in boxing action last weekend, Willie Thompson, a 19-year-old 154 pounder from Bay St. Louis, was defeated by Randy Young of the Mobile Boxing Club by virtue of a TKO in the second round.

On Sept. 4, the B-K-W Club will be fighting in the Charles B. Murphy School in Pearlinton.

On Oct. 30, the B-K-W boxers will host their first bout of the season in Bay St. Louis at the Disabled American Legion Hall at 111 Main Street.

Club coaches are advising all B-K-W boxers to use the gymnasium entrance to the building until street repairs on Main Street are completed.

Experienced line enhancing 'bowl-bound' Bulldogs

If the time-honored expression that any army travels on its stomach still has relevance, then a new footnote can be added to the Julius Caesar era saying with a bit of a football touch:

This one would be that a year," Wilson stated. "He's learned his position at left offensive guard and has been doing a great job."

—Paul Young (6-2, 254-pound) freshman guard from Clarksdale is going to be a good player for us," add-Petia is also going through the learning process, just having finished his first spring session here," Wilson said. "He's tough, he'll hit people, and he doesn't mind stacking his head in there."

—Darr Dickinson (6-1, 230-pound) soph guard from Tampa, Fla., just needs a little more strength, and he's going to be a good one," stated his position coach. "He's scrappy and with some more weight, he'll be able to do some things."

—Danny Sanders (6-1, 240-pound) junior tackle from Senatobia has one great thing going against him—his height," Wilson observed. "But he more than makes up for that with his toughness."

—Kevin Walker (6-4, 255-pound) soph center from Jackson is an excellent snapper, both deep and short," said his line coach. "He's going to have to develop quicker feet, but we feel he has a great future ahead of him."

—Wayne Harris (6-3, 275-pound) senior guard and winner of the 1981 Jacobs Award as the SEC's best blocker, is potentially one of the best football players in the country," Wilson said. "He not only has quick feet and a tremendous size, but he is willing to do the things it takes to do good."

—Chris Hutchins (6-4, 265-pound) tackle from Petal has really developed over the summer," noted the Louisiana native. "He has lost weight while coming back and showing the tenacity it takes to play."

Bulldogs Offensive Tackle

footage... off the travels behind its line... and coaches will agree that this truism is still in vogue.

And the fact that Mississippi State could possibly start as many as five seniors in the interior and two other fourth-year men on the flanks is enough to excite Lane Coaches Barry Wilson and Joe Crousen of the Bulldogs.

"It makes me want to cry to think they are going to leave after this year," noted MSU's Wilson, who will be returning to his hometown of New Orleans this week for State's opener Saturday at Tulane.

"For this year, though, I am excited about it, I tell you," he added. "They are the finest group of young men, and Joe and I are going to miss them. We want to have a great year now because all these players worked so hard this summer to get into condition."

With a line corps as deep and numerous as the Bulldogs "trenchmen," it's hard to single out individuals, so Wilson took a few minutes to comment on each performer on the eve of the '82 campaign:

—Bill Bell (6-2, 245-pound) senior center from Gulfport is improved ed the MSU coach. "He is going through the learning process and is getting our system down at this point."

—Allen Cooperwood (5-11, 215-pound) junior from Pontotoc is primarily a deep snapper with the specialty teams," Wilson explained. "He's willing to work hard on that, and he's also trying to get more consistency."

—Mike McDonald (6-2, 245-pound) junior center from Hialeah, Fla., is one of the toughest kinds we have," said the line mentor. "He's a scrapper, and we have a lot of confidence in him playing the backup role to Kent Hull."

—Todd Kirkland (6-4, 240-pound) soph center from Tusculum, Ala., has to rely on a lot of quickness," Wilson noted. "He is learning the game now to a point where he can play and not hurt our middle of the line strength."

—Kent Hull (6-5, 254-pound) three-year starting center from Greenwood is a very consistent and heady player," stated the offensive line coach. "and he's one of the smartest kids on the field I've ever coached. He's physically tough, too, and hardly ever makes a critical mistake."

—Rusty Brown (6-1, 250-pound) soph end from tremendous knowledge of the game. He is a very good backup."

—Paige Hitchcock (6-2, 240-pound) senior from Bay St. Louis has been with us for three years previously and is a fighter," said the former New Orleans Holy Cross High grinder. "He is a hard worker and tries hard every day."

—Roger Hishphen (6-5, 270-pound) soph tackle from Buras, La., is another one of last year's freshmen who worked extremely hard over the summer," Wilson said. "He needs to develop his feet a little, but he's a player of the future."

—Joe Estey (6-4, 255-pound) soph guard from Kentwood, La., was redshirted last year, but we are looking for some big things from Joe this year," said the man who watched Joe's cousin Eddie Estey earn All-American honors at LSU. "He can be a devastating player if he can overcome injuries and stay on the field."

—Tony Sartor (6-5, 270-pound) senior tackle from Pearl has without a doubt developed into one of our finest offensive linemen over the last four years," Wilson acknowledged. "He did a great job last year and has tremendous feet."

—Don Scamardo (6-3, 245-pound) junior guard from New Orleans has been having his finest fall since he came to State," noted the fourth-year MSU coach. "He is our No. 3 guard, and we wouldn't mind putting Don into the game at any point."

—Frank Harbin (6-4, 260-pound) soph tackle from Grenada is a young man who has come a long way since playing academy football," Wilson explained.

HNC hungry for victory

By EDGAR PEREZ
Veteran Hancock North Central Hawks—harboring vivid memories of last year's one-point, season-opener loss to St. Stanislaus—will swoop into Rockaway Stadium Friday night hungry for victory.

"We feel like this year it's our turn," said HNC Head Coach Irvin Favre.

"There's going to be a lot on the line in this game—a big rivalry exists between these two teams, and it's the first game of the season for both," Favre noted.

"We both played a good ball game last year, only when the game was over, Hancock was on the short end of that 14-13 score," the coach continued.

Bringing solid depth and experience to the White Cypress avary this year are eight returning stalwarts who played key roles in the Hawks 1981 'heartbreaker' season in which they lost three games by one point and another by two.

With any luck at all the Hawks will be Hancock County champs and the team to beat for Deep South Conference and District 8-A honors.

Leading his comrades on the field will be quarterback Mark Santalla who made an impressive start last season before being sidelined with a broken ankle.

With several of the lettermen going both ways, the Hawks will have six starters returning on defense and four on offense.

"Cedric Goff has been a defensive stalwart for two years," Favre said of his senior split end.

Bobby Beech, Mickey Keilm, Rodney Rester and Mike Bilbo all have another year's experience to add to the abilities which made them standouts last year.

Favre noted 285-pound sophomore Steve McQueen, a recent transfer to HNC from Louisiana, is also doing a good job in the line.

The Hawks will present a formidable front wall in both directions, one sure to be punching big holes for Curry and Lacoste and likely to keep the opponents dancing on their own real estate many a coming Friday evening.

Following the opener with SSC Friday, the Hawks will meet Forrest County Agricultural High there Sept. 18, host Stone County Sept. 17, host Pass Christian Sept. 24, and visit East Central Oct. 1.

The Hawks then will be at home for the next three weeks, against St. John Oct. 8, Vandalia Oct. 15, and Mercy Cross Oct. 22.

The traditional Hawk-Tiger encounter will see fur and feathers flying Oct. 29 at the Bay St. Louis High School Stadium.

The Hawks will close out their regular season Nov. 5 at home against Pearl River Central, and then will likely take to the road again in quest of conference, district and bowl trophies.

Hard-hitting game expected in Pass grid season opener

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
The Pass Christian High School Pirates' game Friday night here against the Vancleave High School Bulldogs should be a hard-hitting contest, says Bob Lumpkin, Pass High head football coach.

Both teams are part of the Deep South Football Conference and District Eight.

Although the Pirate offensive and defensive team members overall are bigger, they lack in the experience last year's players possessed, the Pirate mentor says.

He says at several positions 14-year-old Pirates will face 18-year-old Vancleave players. Lumpkin reports his 39-member team consists of 12 seniors, 12 juniors and 15 sophomores.

Pass Christian's comparatively large conference team allows several backup players for each position, the head coach notes.

"It's real important for us to get off to a good start this season, so we need to beat Vancleave. We have to forget our inexperience and win the ball game," he states.

Lumpkin urges all Pirate fans to attend the game slated to begin at 7:30 p.m.

He says all defensive team members are rookies and only two offensive squad players were starters last year—seniors Leonard Porter at center and Ben Fields as tailback.

The head coach notes Porter was a guard and Fields was playing tailback last year.

Both position changes allow the experienced players to man the fuffer slots, Lumpkin says.

Porter can play virtually any position and will be more effective as center, he reports.

"Fields is the best returning ball carrier we have and we will get the ball into his hands as much as we can," Lumpkin states.

"Last year we ran a veer formation. This year we'll run the I formation. The reason for this is because we feel like we don't have a good runner as a quarterback and we need to get the ball into the tailback's hands," he explains.

When asked if he is planning a fairly consistent running game, Lumpkin said he will utilize a combination of plays.

Jamie Jenkins, a senior and a reliable backup quarterback last season, will move into the first string position.

"He's real steady and does a lot of things well," Lumpkin states.

Junior Charles Woods, a first year player, will be backup quarterback.

Richard Dedeaux is a flanker who Lumpkin feels is a good athlete and will be utilized in a variety of offensive tactics.

Timmy Pienas, a 170-pound junior, will be fullback. Lumpkin describes Pienas as an excellent blocker and good ball carrier.

The offensive line consists of Porter as center; Guard Quinton Brown, a 170-pound junior who saw some varsity action last year in that position; Herbert Dedeaux as the other guard, a 180-pound sophomore; 215-pound Anthony Woods and 180-pound Perry Young, both sophomore tackles; Alan Dedeaux, a 185-pound sophomore tight end; and 165-pound senior Lynn Dedeaux or 145-pound junior Ramone Henderson as split end.

Pirate defenders include Anthony Woods and Quinton Brown as tackles; Pienas and 175-pound senior and first-year player Timmy Allen as ends; Alan Dedeaux and Porter as inside linebackers; Richard Dedeaux and 165-pound senior Al McKay as outside linebackers; 150-pound junior John McKay and 165-pound sophomore Pat McDonald as cornerbacks; and Henderson as safety.

The head coach says, "We have good young linemen, but I hate to expose them to varsity ball at the beginning of the season."

He noted four linemen will be playing their first varsity game Friday.

Lumpkin reports Vancleave will field an experienced team with 14 seniors in key offensive and defensive positions.

Bulldog Quarterback Phillip McMullan, six-foot, three-inches tall and 190 pounds, is a outstanding passer who threw the ball 29 times against the Pirates last year, Lumpkin says.

The Pirate head coach expects McMullan to throw the ball a lot Friday night particularly against the Pass' inexperienced defensive secondary.

"Vancleave is always real physical and we expect this to be a hard-hitting ball game," he states.

Ole Miss opens season hosting Memphis State

Coach Steve Sloan begins his fifth season at the helm of the Ole Miss Rebels in Oxford Saturday at 1:30 when Memphis State University's Tigers invade Hemingway Stadium.

This year's Ole Miss team will offer a new look both offensively and defensively as the Rebels have gone to the I-formation on offense and the Georgia-style eight-man-front on defense.

"We're ready to get started," Sloan said. "It's been pretty hot and we've attempted to give our players as much exposure to the heat as possible, especially on the Hemingway turf. We expect it to be really hot at game time Saturday."

Saturday's clash will be the 36th between Ole Miss and Memphis State with the Rebels leading 30-4-1 in past games played.

The contest will also mark the 22nd time for Ole Miss to open its season against Memphis State and the Rebels are 18-2-1 in that department, including having won the last three times the Tigers provided opening game opposition—7-3 in 1977, 14-7 in 1978, and 38-34 in 1979.

Ole Miss came from behind to win last year's game in Memphis, 7-3, as quarterback

John Fourcade's 35-yard third quarter run provided the margin of victory.

Replacing Fourcade has drawn much attention during pre-season drills as Sloan has worked junior Kelly Powell and sophomore Kent Austin and Scott Rushing at the spot.

Powell started three games a year ago when Fourcade was out with injuries and Austin also saw limited duty, while Rushing was red shirted last season.

Ole Miss returns a veteran club from last year's 4-6-1 season which ended with a 21-17 victory over arch-rival Mississippi State.

The 1982 squad is one of the largest in Ole Miss history, thanks to an extensive off-season weight program. Sloan's Rebels will line up with several players weighing in excess of 260 pounds.

"We feel this is the best overall personnel we've had," Sloan said. "We certainly feel this is our best chance to have a really good team. This team will have the most depth we've had, and it will be the fastest team and the most experienced."

Bay Soccer Club registration opens Tuesday

The Bay Area Soccer Club reports it will start registering soccer players at the local schools Tuesday for two weeks.

The club is particularly interested in getting young girls to play soccer.

If enough girls sign up they will be in their own leagues and not have to compete with the boys.

"Soccer is the fastest growing sport in the United States and can be played by almost anyone," a club spokesman noted.

The registration fee for the 1982-83 season is $15 and includes a playing jersey with matching socks and shorts, soccer balls for the team and membership in the Mississippi Youth Soccer Association and the United States Soccer association.

Volunteers are needed to make recreational soccer a success, so all interested people are asked to become a coach, assistant coach, referee, linesman, team parent or assist in preparing the fields.

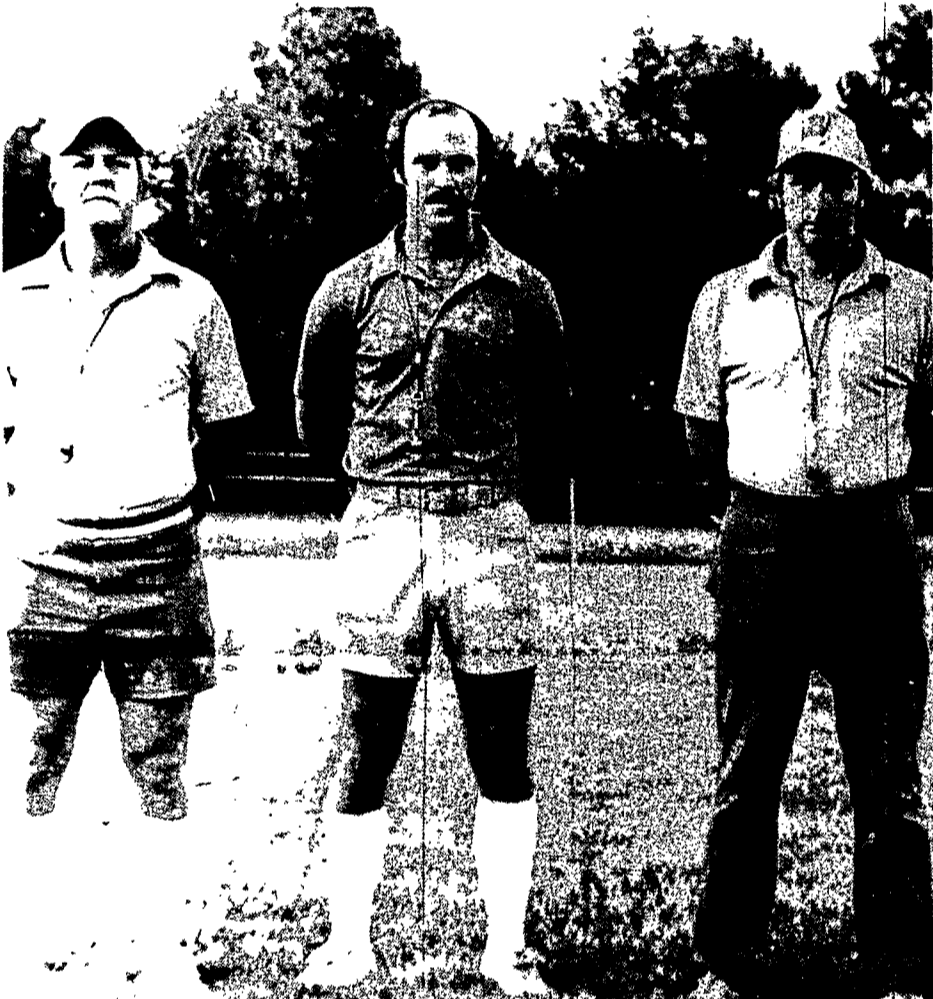

There will be a coaches clinic Saturday, Sept. 18 for all interested people.

The clinic will be free and is a good way to become familiar with the game. A referee clinic will tentatively be held on Oct. 30 prior to the start of league play.

All young persons ages 5-18 are eligible to play and are guaranteed to play at least half of each game.

There will be ten games in the season starting on Nov. 6, and with breaks for the holidays the season will conclude by the end of March.

Anyone interested in coaching or helping to coach a girl's team is encouraged to contact Harriet Bellone, the Girls' Division commissioner.

OUTDOOR TOPICS

A HARD LIFE
Mother Nature is a tough old girl and no one knows it better than a largemouth bass that has lived to be one year old. Consider the story of his life so far and you'll understand his problem.

Life began as one of perhaps 15,000 eggs deposited on the bottom of a lake or stream. At that point his mother abandoned him and he was left in the care of a proud but somewhat capricious papa who was so interested in his nest-watching job that he quit eating.

About a week later, if a spring rain storm didn't destroy the nest by flooding or siltation, and if papa bass was successful in defending it against other fish, crayfish, turtles, birds and snakes, the eggs hatched into tiny fish called fry. Papa bass stayed around another week watching over the tightly packed cluster of his offspring, then his hunger pains grew so great that he turned on his closest kin and began eating them. Abandonment, predation and cannibalism—all that and our young bass isn't even three weeks old!

Studies have shown that the survival rate of largemouth bass in their first few weeks isn't very good. According to Mercury Outboards' fishing department, of every thousand eggs the female bass lays, only 50 of them will live beyond the egg/fry stage. And one out of every three of these lucky fish will die before its first birthday.

There's a good reason, of course, for this daily battle for life. Nature is harsh and if our young bass can survive he will pass along to his offspring genetic traits which will enable some of them to live, thus insuring the continuation of the species.

Coast Guard studying marine strobe signals

Two civilian advisory councils to the U.S. Coast Guard are considering appeals by boaters to authorize the use of strobe lights as an anti-collision signal.

At present, strobe lights are authorized only for use as a distress signal on inland waters. Use of strobe lights for either distress or anti-collision signals on the high seas has not been approved.

A revision to the International Rules scheduled to become effective June 1, 1983, warns that use of strobe lights on the high seas "to attract attention on another vessel shall be avoided."

However, many recreational boaters favor the dual use of strobe lights for both distress and anti-collision signals.

The National Boating Safety Advisory Council is studying the issue, as is the Rules of the Road Advisory Council.

Recreational boaters say their objective is to have an effective signal to attract the attention of large vessels that might otherwise fail to see their boats either visually or on radar.

They feel that by varying the color and/or repetition rate, it would be possible to make distinctive signals that would eliminate confusion between distress and anti-collision signals.

At a recent meeting of the Rules of the Road Council, many members expressed concern that large numbers of those lights around deep draft channels could confuse pilots and masters on large vessels.

Both groups will make recommendations to the Coast Guard after studying the issue.

Senner, Henry Devaughn to start in opener

After three weeks of intense training, Pearl River College head coach J.C. Arban is fine tuning his Wildcats for their season opener against north division foe East Mississippi at Scooba tonight.

Arban knows hardly anything about his first opponent other than they run out of the "Y" formation.

"We haven't played them in four years and all I know is that they were picked to finish third in the North," Arban said.

The Wildcats have played East Mississippi only twice during the past decade. In 1976, PRC won 24-8 at Columbus and in '77 East Miss returned the favor 27-13 here in the Dobbie Holden Stadium.

Overall the Wildcats have won 20, lost 7 and tied 2 since the teams started playing back in the '30's. During the past 20 years it has been dead even with the Wildcats taking four and the Lions four.

"I think we are as ready as we can get," said Arban. "We need to play someone other than ourselves."

The Wildcats' starting offensive backfield will include three sophomores. Chuck Bounds of Purvis will handle the signal calling, while Edward Holt of Poplarville and Lloyd Henry of Hancock have the left and right halfback positions nailed down.

Freshman Scott Senner of St. Stanislaus will start at fullback and handle the punting chores. Mark Falls of Bassfield is the starting center. The tackles will be Randy Cuevas of Lumberton and James Adams of Gonzales, La. The guards are Greg Harris of Lafayette and Melvin McCurley of LaPlace.

Henry Martin of Pine, La. will be at wide-out and James Jenkins of Petal will start at tight end.

Richard Hughes of Lumberton and Billy Kent Smith of Poplarville will handle the defensive end spots. Joe Church of St. Stanislaus and Tommy Hillman of Petal will be the linebackers with Mike Gallo at noseguard. The tackles are Jeff Waits of Oak Grove and Terry Stockstill of Carriere.

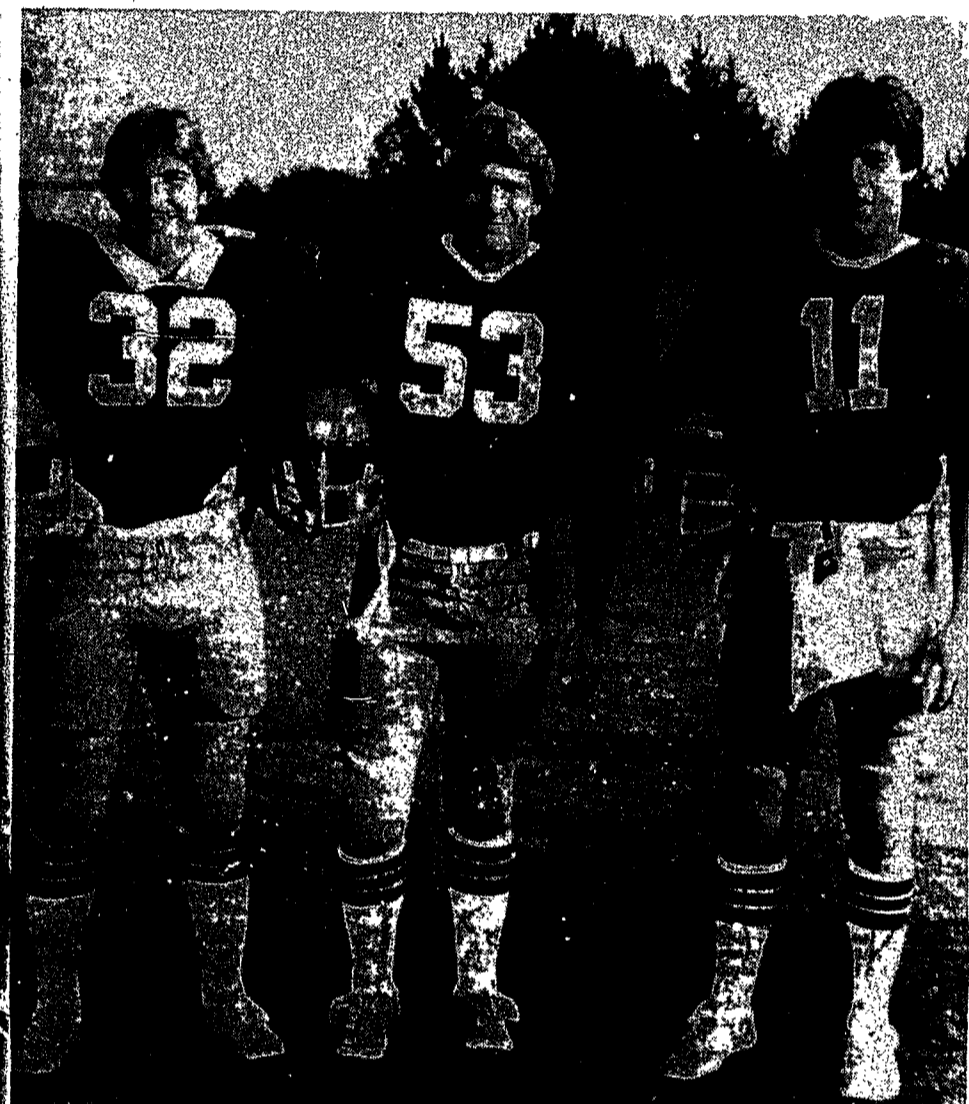

The PRC defensive secondary will have Robert DeVaughn of Hancock and Randy Roberts of Columbia at the corners; Jeff Douglas of Blair at monster and Don Williams of Bogalusa at safety. Tony Smith will kick-off for the 'Cats.

SATELLITE DISCOVERY

DR. Wm. L. POWELL

In this space age, different country's satellites are orbiting around the universe and our country is discovering and tracking them. The science of Chiropractic has also been orbiting around the world since its discovery in 1895 and now it is reliably reported that certain German medical colleges are teaching Chiropractic principles to medical students. Dr. Ernest Josef Roehrer, who is a licensed M.D., has confined his work for 20 years to the Science of Chiropractic because he believes it generally produces the best results for a patient's health. Dr. Karl Sell, M.D., says: "The value of Chiropractic is to be found not only in its curative powers, but also in its ability to keep health up to par. Every person, even when in seemingly good health, can benefit from regular Chiropractic care, since adjustments will remove NERVE INTERFERENCE, improve circulation and help people to enjoy life to its fullest extent."

Dove season opens Saturday

Mississippi's first fall hunting season is just around the corner.

Dove hunting, which traditionally opens the hunting season each year in the Magnolia State, gets underway statewide Saturday.

This first season extends through Sunday, Oct. 3.

Department of Wildlife Conservation officials say that shooting hours are the same as last year, one-half hour before sunrise until sunset.

Hunters will find that the bag limit has not changed on doves. Hunters are permitted 12 birds per day and a possession limit of no more than 24. A possession limit is not allowed on opening day.

"For dove hunting, shooters must have their shotguns plugged and incapable of holding more than three shells," advised Benny Herring, director of the Bureau of Fisheries and Wildlife.

"Of course those persons between the ages of 16 or 65 hunting doves must have a valid hunting license on their person before going to the field."

The dates for the remaining dove seasons are: Oct. 16 - Nov. 7, and Dec. 25 - Jan. 10. Each year in Mississippi, dove hunting continues to be one of the state's more popular shooting sports.

Figures from the Department of Wildlife Conservation indicate that some 123,000 persons participate in dove hunting annually.

According to the Department, hunters average taking just over four birds per day, with an annual season bag of almost 26 birds. Some 3.4 million doves are harvested each year in Mississippi.

TEAL SEASON

Mississippi's waterfowl hunters will soon be in the marshes. The occasion: Mississippi's special nine day teal hunting season.

During this season, which opens Saturday, Sept. 11 and closes Sunday, Sept. 19, duck shooters may harvest blue-winged and green-winged teal, some of the earliest waterfowl to migrate through the state toward wintering grounds further south.

Shooting hours are from sunrise until sunset. The daily bag limit is four teal, with no more than eight in possession. The season is open statewide.

State conservation officials say that a $7.50 federal duck stamp is required by teal hunters 16 years-of-age and older. Hunters over 16 and under 65 must also have a $2 state duck stamp, in addition to their valid state hunting license. All licenses and stamps must be signed and on the hunter while hunting.

Sept. 4 - First dove season opens.

Sept. 11 - Teal season opens; Gallinule season opens.

Sept. 19 - Teal, gallinule seasons close.

Sept. 25 - National Hunting and Fishing Day.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

—Primitive weapon hunters in Mississippi must use single or double-barreled muzzle-loading rifles of at least .38 caliber, and single or double-barreled muzzle-loading shotguns with single ball or slug.

—Everyone, except those exempt by law, is required to purchase an annual hunting and fishing license and have it on their person while hunting or fishing.

—The black bear is still considered a game animal in Mississippi. However, there is no open season on black bear because there are so few of them.

—Turtles may be taken throughout the year with no bag limit. But the taking of endangered or threatened species like the Atlantic ridley, hawksbill, loggerhead sea turtle, and the green sea turtle, is prohibited.

Book Review

SALT WATER FISH
The Standard Handbook of Salt Water Fishing, revised and updated by Robert Scharff may be borrowed from the City County Public Library.

This book is filled with useful information such as choice of lines, rods and reels, selection of baits, lures and tackle.

There is a section on techniques and an excellent chapter called Salt Water Fish for Dinner. Here you'll find instructions for cleaning and dressing the fish, scales should be removed before the fish is cleaned.

The art of filleting and skinning is also discussed. Proper freezing method for fish is covered.

A tip worth considering: Razor sharp knives should be used for cleaning raw fish, but dull broad ones are better for cutting cooked fish, and a spatula helps when transferring the cooked fish unbroken onto the serving platter.

Under the heading "Fishing Southern and Gulf of Mexico Waters" is about three pages devoted to Mississippi with a credit to Anthony Ragusin, author of Fishing Is Fun.

Ragusin said: "Within easy reach of the cities of the Mississippi Gulf Coast are to be found more than a score of different kinds of fish." There is a chart showing name of species, where to be found, and when to fish for them.

Using the decimal system this book may be located in the library as 799.1. Should you browse around a bit you'll find several other books on the subject worth exploring.

MARK TWAIN

It is really amazing how frequently "The Complete Short Stories of Mark Twain" is borrowed from the City-County Library!

In a total of 66 stories the entire span of Twain's writing life is covered from 1865 to 1916.

Twain has written some great stories and they are an important part of our literary heritage.

What a sense of humor! Some of the stories are a good source of folk lore, and all of them have at least one good hearty laugh which we all know is a remedy for indigestion!

Go down the list — re-read your favorites and treat yourself to the pleasure of reading for the first time any you may have missed.

WLOX to carry Ole Miss playbacks

Frank Morock, associate sports director at WHBQ-TV, Memphis, will join Coach Steve Sloan to co-host the Ole Miss football playbacks on television this fall.

Morock, who joined the WHBQ-TV sports staff last March, is a 12-year veteran in the broadcast field.

Prior to joining WHBQ-TV, Morock worked six years at WPSD-TV, Paducah, Ky., serving two years as news anchor-producer and four years as sports director. While working at WPSD-TV, Morock also co-hosted Murray State University's football and basketball coaches' shows.

A graduate of George Mason University and a native of Pennsylvania, Morock has also worked at stations in Harrison, Va., Ocean City, Md., and Fairfax, Va.

Stations set to carry the Ole Miss playbacks include WLOX-TV, Biloxi at 10:30 p.m. Sundays.

Safety First In Water, Too!

Can You And Your Boat Survive A Fire?

With water everywhere, if you're like most boaters, you rarely think about fires.

Instead, you think about your next boat trip... or where you're going... what route you'll take... who to take... what kinds of food to bring along... you don't seem to have a care in the world.

Take a minute and think about what you'd do if a fire broke out during your trip. Be honest. What would you do if smoke started coming from the engine, the galley, from an access panel, or even somewhere on deck? If you hesitated answering, you're not alone.

The latest Coast Guard statistics show that fire has become a significant cause of damage to pleasure boats, claiming lives and costing millions of dollars.

Coast Guard Fire Tips

• Equip your vessel with more portable extinguishers than the required Coast Guard minimum.

• Locate portable extinguishers in easily accessible places.

• Your nose is the most effective fume and fire detection device. Open and sniff bilge area prior to starting off on any trip.

• The only time to leave your vessel is when you can't put the fire out. If abandoning ship is necessary, make sure everyone is wearing a Coast Guard approved life jacket and be sure to get up wind of the boat. That way, should an explosion occur, you'll not be in the path of flaming debris and gasoline.

Of course, it would be foolish not to be prepared for a fire on your boat; it is also against the law in many instances. Based on the type of engine, Coast Guard regulations require vessels between 16 and 26 feet to carry at least one hand held extinguisher, type BC Size 1, if no fixed extinguishing system is present in the engine compartment. Other regulations specify that vessels between 26 and 40 feet have two such units and vessels of more than 40 feet carry three.

Which Type to Choose?

To meet these minimum requirements, and remember they are minimum, three agents are UL-rated against Class B fires, BCF Halon 1211, carbon dioxide, and Dry Chemicals. Many boat owners instinctively choose the latter as it is usually the least expensive of the three types. But that, safety experts point out, may be a mistake.

Many boaters have extinguished a fire only to discover that less damage was done by the fire than by their dry chemical extinguisher. The chemical leaves a powdery residue that penetrates everywhere, even through closed cabinet doors, fouling radar, navigation gear, radios, electrical systems and ship-to-shore phones. Replacement or cleanup can be costly and time-consuming.

The gaseous agent, BCF Halon 1211 from ICI Americas, Wilmington, Delaware, evaporates completely and leaves no residue.

Hancock Youth Court reopens volunteer training

By EDGAR PEREZ

The Hancock County Youth Court will begin its second special volunteer training program Thursday, Sept. 9 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Dan Russell Youth Court Center on Court Street in Bay St. Louis.

Brenda Bailey, youth court counselor who initiated the volunteer program here a year ago under the auspices of Youth Court Referee Michael Haas, said the training sessions will continue each Thursday night through Oct. 21.

Some sixteen men and women representing a wide range of occupations and a number of local communities completed the initial series of volunteer training sessions.

"Thirteen of those volunteers have already worked with at least one youngster each through this program, and some volunteers have been able to assist several court clients during our first year," Bailey pointed out.

"Our volunteers are assigned to work on a one-to-one basis with abused, neglected, runaway and delinquent boys or girls who have come under the jurisdiction of the Youth Court," the counselor explained.

"The volunteer provides a role-model which might be absent in the child's life," Bailey continued.

"We hope the volunteer can provide a big brother or big sister image, and serve primarily as a friend with whom the youngster can be at ease," she added.

Opening session of the 1982 Volunteers in Court Orientation and Training Program slated for 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 9 at the Youth Court will include welcome by Bailey and an outline of the program goals, as well as showing of the film 'Investment in Futures' on the situation of youth in Mississippi today.

In addition to her position as the court's youth services counselor, Bailey is coordinator of volunteers.

She said anyone interested in joining the volunteer program should call her at the Youth Court, 467-7945, or attend the first training session.

The remaining six sessions in the program also are slated to run from 7 to 9 p.m. on succeeding Thursdays. Following is the program schedule:

—Thursday, Sept. 16

'The Youth Court Act, 1979' by Michael D. Haas, referee, Hancock County Youth Court.

'Probation, Parole and Training Schools' by Elson Cody, youth services counselor, Hancock County Youth Court.

Project Aware Speaking Team from Mississippi Penitentiary, Parchman.

—Thursday, Sept. 23

'Drug Identification and Usage in Hancock County' by Alvin Ladner, investigator, Hancock County Sheriff's Department.

'Physical and Psychological Effects and Treatment Resources; by representatives of Alcoholics Anonymous; Ms. Byrne Windham, certified consultant for addictive diseases; and Eddie Hodges, assistant coordinator for drug and alcohol abuse, Gulf Coast Mental Health Center.

—Thursday, Sept. 30
'Communication Skills' by Ms. Brenda Bailey, youth services counselor Hancock County Youth Court.

—Thursday, Oct. 7

'The Abused and Neglected Child' by Ms. Bridgett Logan, social worker, Hancock County Department of Public Welfare.

'Education Referral' by Dr. Brenda Scafidi, coordinator of special education, Municipal Separate School District of Bay St. Louis; and Mrs. Gloria Dean, psychometrist-counselor, Municipal Separate School District of Bay St. Louis.

—Thursday, Oct. 14

'Problem Solving Skills' by Ms. Bailey.

—Thursday, Oct. 21

Awarding of certificates and celebration.

HIGHEST AVERAGES—Earning the highest academic averages in their respective grades at St. Clare School in Waveland during the 1981-1982 school year are, from left, Jonathan Clark, seventh grade; Joseph Overall, sixth; Chris Penton, first; Sean Cassidy, second; Amy Power, third; Shannon Maggio, fourth; and Therissa Gagnon, fifth.

Immunizations urged for toddlers under two

September has traditionally been the month for back-to-school immunizations.

But modern medicine and the Mississippi School Immunization Law of 1978 have changed the emphasis to preschoolers — Mississippi children from birth to age five.

Vaccines which prevent the childhood diseases of polio, measles, mumps, rubella, diphtheria, tetanus, and pertussis (whooping cough) have proven to be safe, effective, and cost-effective.

"Vaccines have saved the citizens of this state hundreds of millions of dollars in medical and rehabilitation costs," declared Governor William Winter, who has proclaimed September Preschool Immunization Month.

The School Immunization Law, which requires complete immunization of children in kindergarten through grade 12 has reached a greater than 98 percent compliance rate.

But the Mississippi State Department of Health and Governor Winter want to be sure that the younger children are also protected from vaccine-preventable childhood diseases whose complications can be devastating to both parents and their children.

Public health officials statewide are concentrating their efforts to ensure that children from birth to age five are also appropriately immunized because childhood diseases can be particularly dangerous to young children.

By 24 months of age, a child should have had four doses of DTP (diphtheria, tetanus, pertussis) vaccine, three doses of polio vaccine, and one of MMR (measles, mumps, rubella).

Booster shots begin at age four.

Studies show that only about 80 percent of the preschool children in Mississippi are adequately immunized. That means that 40 percent of the state's children still face the threat of polio, measles, mumps, rubella, diphtheria, tetanus, and whooping cough.

The State Department of Health goal is to ensure adequate immunization for 90 percent of all children born in Mississippi — by the time they're two years old.

Governor Winter and State Health Officer Dr. Alton B. Cobb jointly voice their support of reaching that goal and "urge all parents and guardians to obtain needed immunizations for their preschool children."

Parents who are unsure about the immunization status of their children should check with their physician or county health department. They can help raise and maintain immunization levels to such a degree that vaccine preventable disease does not occur.

Legion Junior Auxiliary organizes, elects officers

An organizational meeting for an American Legion Junior Auxiliary was held Tuesday at the American Legion Club House on Green Meadow Road in Bay St. Louis.

Beth Burleson, junior activities chairman for American Legion Auxiliary Unit No. 139 presided.

Phyllis Moran and Jeanne Moran explained the aims and purposes of the American Legion Junior Auxiliary.

Jeanne Moran told the girls about some of the projects the juniors had when she was a junior member. She is a past president of the junior auxiliary.

Donna Moran was elected president and Penny Boudin was elected secretary.

Burleson announced a drive for new members.

To be eligible for membership, a young lady must be the sister, daughter, or granddaughter of a Legionnaire.

The junior who signs up the most members by the November meeting will receive a prize.

A fund-raising project is planned and the girls voted to have a bake sale.

The bake sale will be at the TG&Y shopping center in Bay St. Louis on Saturday, Sept. 4 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Connie Moran will serve as chairman and also as chairman of the telephone committee.

Lisa Traverca is the treasurer; Susan Moran, chaplain; and Patricia Wilson, scrapbook chairman.

The girls plan to make surprise gifts for a veterans party on Sept. 28.

The next junior meeting will be Sept. 21, with subsequent meetings on the third Tuesday of every month.

The girls voted to try to get the name of an orphan that they can assist. They will send letters and gifts for her birthday, Christmas and other holidays.

Mrs. Phyllis Moran, ninth district president, will install the officers at the next meeting to be hosted by Susan Moran.

Donna Moran won the door prize for this month.

Mother of Mercy sets annual bazaar

Our Mother of Mercy Church located at 251 Saucier Avenue, Pass Christian will hold its annual bazaar, Saturday and Sunday on the church grounds.

The bazaar pageant will begin at 7 p.m. Saturday.

The reigning queen is Donna Marie Vontoure, 18-year-old daughter of William Vontoure of Bay St. Louis and Mrs. Elaine Vontoure of Pass Christian.

She is a sophomore at Pass Christian High School and a Flag Corp member.

Her hobbies are dancing, skating and swimming.

The reigning crown princess is Violet Fields, five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Fields Jr. of Pass Christian.

She is a kindergarten student at Pass Christian Elementary School.

The reigning princess is Candice Piernas, 11-year-old daughter of Tommy Piernas of New Orleans, and Mrs. Sharon Piernas of Pass Christian.

She is a sixth grade student at St. Paul's Elementary School in Pass Christian and member of the Pass Christian Dance and Drama Guild.

These three young ladies will be honored at the bazaar for raising $353 for the parish.

The bazaar will feature a variety of attractions, including seafood gumbo, stuffed crabs, various other dinners, oriental food, candies, cakes and drinks.

NEWS

OF EDUCATION

TEACHING BASIC ECONOMIC SKILLS

Students preparing to go out on their own may soon be better equipped to cope with their personal finances in an era of inflation, increasing personal bankruptcies, and a bewildering array of new credit and banking services, thanks to a new educational program. Called "Bank Ed," the comprehensive three-part program is designed to provide elementary, junior high and high school students with the basic skills they need to successfully manage their personal finances. Underwritten by Crocker Bank and developed by E.T.S. & Associates — working with public educators, Bank Ed was tested in San Diego area schools to the critical acclaim of both students and educators. It is now becoming available nationwide through sponsoring local banks.

At the elementary school level, students learn how money is used as a medium of exchange for goods and services and how earning money involves work and spending money involves choices. Day to day experiences and role playing are used.

At the junior high school level, Bank Ed II is designed to teach the math and life skills associated with earning money including applying for a job, going into business, advertising and selling, and staying in business, with emphasis on integrity of service and quality of product.

The Bank Ed III course for senior high school students involves a long-term simulation in which students role play themselves at a future time. As is frequently the case in real life, students are paired with either a simulated spouse or a roommate. Then they experience the process of jointly negotiating how family income will be allocated. They choose occupations and receive "first career year incomes" which they must budget to satisfy as many needs and desires as possible within their means. They must provide for necessities of life including housing, furnishings, transportation, clothing, food and insurance.

Innovative homework assignments may have a pair of students searching for, locating and negotiating the price of affordable housing, or shopping for a week's supply of groceries in a supermarket.

When the curriculum is completed, students will have acquired economic literacy that includes not only a knowledge of topics that are of immediate practical value,

Animal-related careers encouraged by specialist

An animal behaviorist who advises members of 4-H Clubs about animal-related careers said many youngsters who are searching for a career may be overlooking some important choices.

Kris Smith, an animal behaviorist and a field representative for the Animal Protection Institute, said young people who may be crestfallen to find that veterinary schools are packed to overflowing should not give up in their search.

She said many youngsters mistakenly think becoming a veterinarian is the only road to an animal-related career.

"Animal lovers can find a lifelong occupation with animals in which they will find challenge, monetary reward, good employment outlook, and in many cases, an opportunity to help save this planet's dwindling wildlife and habitat," Smith said.

Among the careers she describes are jobs as veterinarian, technicians, animal care attendants, pet show managers, dog trainers, show dog handlers, naturalists, wildlife conservation officers, oceanographers, animal photographers, and animal writers.

Smith cites a book, "Your career in Animal Services," by Arco Publishing Co., Inc., 219 Park Ave. South, New York, N.Y. 10003, by Sam Kohl and Tom Riley as a good source for learning about animal-oriented jobs.

"There is a decided lack of information in the areas with which I am most familiar: animal protection and animal conservation," Smith said. "Certainly young people will want to look at all possible angles in their search for a fulfilling career."

It's important for young people to learn the first rule of the job search: advertise yourself.

Smith said young people should be encouraged to write to groups in which they have an interest locally, regionally or nationally.

"A person's own assertiveness is a telling qualification to prospective employers," she said.

Smith said one employer suggested that young people send lists of animal work they have done, telling what they have raised or trained, and the books they have read. She said prospective employers want to know the young person's philosophy. What is an animal and how should it be viewed?

Smith said young people interested in animals are likely to fall into two categories.

"Some will believe that animals should be totally protected from hunting and trapping," she said. "These individuals are useful and necessary in animal protection careers, and dozens of organizations are looking for this defender."

Among those organizations are the Animal Protection Institute, Fund for Animals, Greenpeace and Defenders of Wildlife.

"Other young people perhaps feel that animals benefit from mankind's predation upon them so long as they are not killed beyond their ability to maintain necessary populations," Smith said. "These people will be most welcome in animal conservation groups which attempt to protect critical wildlife habitat in an effort to provide sportsmen with hunting, trapping and fishing opportunities."

Among these organizations are the National Wildlife Federation, Ducks Unlimited and many State Fish and Game Departments.

Smith puts greatest stress on one aspect of the animal-related career topic: "Get as much experience as you can."

Much of this experience will be strictly volunteer work until the young person has proven himself," Smith said.

She suggests veterinary hospitals, pet shops, ranches, and farms as possible places to start.

"All of these will most certainly accept part-time help," Smith said. "Then, in addition to this or in lieu of it, if the young person can't find a place to gain experience, reading in the field should be encouraged."

Smith said most bookstores and libraries have sections filled with animal and nature books, and paperback editions of such books could allow youngsters to start their own animal library.

"Once the young person has the experience or the knowledge about animals, let it be known," Smith said. "No one gets a merit badge for being humble!" she said.

"This may be a step at which some young people will falter, not wanting to 'brag,' not feeling truly 'qualified,' never having had a real, honest-to-gosh paying animal job."

Smith said many animal people feel this way, and for very good reason.

"The more time they invest in the study of creatures, the more they come to realize how little they know," she said. "So, no one ever feels they know enough."

"Young people have the capability to give a blind man his freedom and a deaf mother her peace of mind by training dogs to serve as eyes or ears for those who are handicapped," Smith said.

"They can be instrumental in the preservation and protection of our wildlife." If the veterinary colleges nationwide remain inundated with applicants and interminable waiting lists, it isn't necessary to discourage young people from careers with animals they love.

"There are other ways to serve," Smith said. And the animals need all the dedicated people they can get."

Controversial role model

By DAVID A. SELLERS
Copley News Service

Paula, a 22-year-old unmarried black, works for the YWCA. She is in charge of planning a community youth program.

While organizing the project Paula discovers she is pregnant. She informs her supervisor she wants to continue her work. Paula claims as an unwed mother she can show the children a role model for an alternative lifestyle.

Paula is informed her philosophy on this issue places the YWCA in an uncomfortable position. A few days later Paula is asked to resign with $1,000 severance pay. Paula goes to court to sue the YWCA for discrimination. How would you handle this case?

The court decided Paula was fired not because of her race sex or pregnancy. She was let go as a result of her wish to promote an alternative lifestyle of unmarried parenthood to her community youth group. Such a philosophy is contrary to the purposes of the YWCA.

The situation was amplified by the fact that she was in a leadership position dealing with children. If Paula had held a non-counseling job she might have been permitted to stay at the YWCA. Her supervisor offered to help Paula locate such a job, but Paula chose not to apply.

The court concluded Paula was treated differently than other unwed mothers employed by the YWCA because of the importance of her contact with children. Paula's claim against the YWCA is dismissed by the court.

MEDICAL JOURNAL

A recent broadcast sponsored by the Columbia-Prebyterian Medical Center and The Prudential Insurance Company discussed several options for correcting vision following cataract surgery.

Dr. James Aquavella, professor of ophthalmology at the University of Rochester, reports that drawbacks associated with using heavy spectacles, the traditional post-surgical therapy, have made doctors consider alternatives for the nearly 500,000 men and women who have their clouded lenses surgically removed each year.

"Extended wear" contact lenses have proven to be a popular alternative to heavy spectacles. The extended wear lens permits the passage of fluid and oxygen to keep the eye healthy, and offers the prospect of increased convenience for active individuals. "The 'extended wear' lens is usually implanted in the eye at the same time the clouded lens is removed during cataract surgery," Dr. Aquavella cautions, "that consideration should be given to the added risk factor in the surgery. Although the risk is manageable, it is still greater than the risk associated with the contact lens," he says.

"Before making any decision," advises Dr. Aquavella, "discuss the options thoroughly with your ophthalmologist and try to get a reasonable understanding of the variables involved. The ophthalmologist will be able to advise a patient about the best alternative for him."

Raymond graduates as marine engineer

Dennis Victor Raymond of Bay St. Louis has successfully qualified as a marine engineer by graduating the Calhoun MEBA Engineering School, Baltimore, Md., and passing the U.S. Coast Guard licensing exams.

He has completed a three-year post-high school course of academic study and sea duty which has prepared him for a career as an engineering officer in the United States Merchant Marine.

His job is one of responsibility and leadership as well as one demanding the application of knowledge and practical experience.

Alternating periods of study at the Calhoun school, and sea duty of the U.S. flag merchant ships and tankers, have thoroughly grounded him in such subjects as marine engineering, several of the physical sciences, the operation and maintenance of ships' power plants, and the wide variety of skills and academic disciplines necessary to his new calling.

As a qualified marine engineer, he is now assured of a career aboard the U.S. flag merchant fleet.

The Calhoun MEBA Engineering School is named for Jesse M. Calhoun, president of the Marine Engineers' Beneficial Association, AFL-CIO, who conceived and fostered its establishment in 1966 as a means of meeting the need of the U.S. merchant mariner for qualified marine engineers.

It is sponsored jointly by the MEBA and steamship companies representing 90 percent of American-flag vessels, with which it holds collective bargaining agreements.

Reproductive cycle of cats

By R.G. ELMORE,
D.V.M.
Copley News Service

Q We have a new kitten in the house.

Please write about the reproductive cycle of the cat for us. We have never had cats before and do not really know what to expect.

A Cats usually reach sexual maturity between 7 and 12 months of age. Females may exhibit their first heat as early as 5 months of age. The male cat matures approximately one to two months later than the female.

Many purebred cats tend to reach maturity later than domestic cats. Cats allowed to roam freely outside usually reach maturity earlier than their house-bound counterparts.

Females usually exhibit reproductive cycles from January until the following September. This seems to be related to the number of hours of daylight. Cats come into heat while the days are the longest. Cats usually do not cycle during the cold months of late fall and winter. This of course will vary with different geographical locations.

The reproductive cycle of the cat is approximately 13 to 15 days in length. If a male cat is present the female will usually accept him for three to six days. If no males are present the female cat will stay in season for up to 10 days.

Mating usually occurs several times a day for three to four days. Most cats will have two litters of two to six kittens per year. Mating is observed most frequently in February, May and June.

Most cats will not show signs of heat while nursing kittens. After weaning their kittens most cats will cycle in approximately two weeks and can become pregnant at that time.

During heat many cats will have changes in personality and have mournful cries. Many unsuspecting cat owners have mistaken these cries and behavior of heat as signs of agony or pain.

Your veterinarian can treat the cat to shorten the time that she is in heat if you do not plan to breed her during that heat period. If you never want to have kittens, the cat should be spayed.

The reproductive cycle of the cat is quite interesting. It is also quite different than most of our other domestic species.

The average cat usually does best on two small meals than on one large one.

of interest to VETERANS

Besides veterans programs available through the federal government, each state also provides supplementary benefits and privileges to men and women who served in the armed forces.

Many of these are aimed at helping the service-disabled, ex-POWs, war widows and orphans. Others have broader eligibility — consult your county or state veterans' office.

About a dozen states have recently passed laws to assist Vietnam veterans who fear long-term health damage from exposure to the herbicide Agent Orange. Thirty-three states and the District of Columbia offer care for elderly vets in state soldiers' homes.

In Washington state, the Department of Veterans Affairs this year opened a statewide toll-free hotline for veterans and dependents. Illinois recently passed legislation providing up to $1,670 to certain disabled vets for remodeling a home to meet their needs — in addition to the $5,000 available from the Veterans Administration for this purpose.

California now provides solar-energy devices for disabled veterans through the Cal-Vet Farm and Home Purchase Act. Nebraska recently increased its Veterans Aid Fund, interest from which is used to assist needy veterans.

A Review

Waveland Players' Fantasy Bayou brings reviewer to tears

By META R. GARSIDE
The Waveland Players' variety show, entitled "Fantasy Bayou," promises to be another hit for this young theatre group.

I attended their pre-dress rehearsal last Sunday, and can't wait to see the finished product this weekend. "Fantasy Bayou," written by Jeanne-Marie Bell (who is fantastic as a very believable Bette Davis in a "Baby Jane" skit with Dottie Overal in the Joan Crawford role), is kept moving from one skit, song, and dance to another by Ed Craig and Bahiyah Schwabacker, who showed a great deal of poise for such a youngster.

Margo Frommeyer sets the mood with a rendition of "Blue Raver." Hansel Baxter's enthusiasm and talent several times brighten the show.

In "If I Could Shimmy Like My Sister Kate," four-year-old Eric Schwartz gives Baxter a run for her money!

Another show stopper is "Heard It Through The Grapevine," a dance number with Nicola Dietrich, Amy Welch, Monica Parker, and Marianne Schwartz.

Edith Bierhorst Back, who wanders in and out as a "bag lady," steals the show! Even the cast members couldn't help laughing — she has the timing of a true comedienne. Even when silent, she had me in tears!

When Dick Fitch sang "I Wish I Was 18 Again," you could have heard a pin drop! He is co-producer and co-director of the show, along with his wife Barbara Jo, who kicks up her heels in a group dance and sings a cute number herself.

Bunk Gardner sings a beautiful "I Have Dreamed" to Lana Noonan, who answers with a sultry "How Long Has This Been Going On." She later joins the Bay Four and After quartet (Brother Pierre St. Pierre, Doug Taylor, Eddie Hodges, and Bunk Gardner) in "I Wonder Why." The quartet also sings a cute "Side by Side," and "Cool Water," among other selections.

Teddy Stechmann, Derek Stechmann, Terry Simpson, John Helmers, Frank Gray, Dick Fitch, Joe Overal, Andy Boudreaux, and Mark Ladner do a rickety number to the tune of "Macho Man," with a surprise ending.

Kelly Kolodzieg, Mark Ladner, Nina Simpson, and Andy Boudreaux do an up-to-date telephone skit — teenagers rehearsing a date to their friends. As the mother of a teenager, I really enjoyed it — and learned a lot!

Old troupers Judith and Frank Gray appear with Edith Back in a skit about a couple wanting to be "frozen."

In service

AIRMAN MAYORAL

Airman Joseph A. Mayoral Sr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Michel Coleman of Route 3, Bay St. Louis, has graduated from the U.S. Air Force avionics systems equipment course at Lowry Air Force Base, Colo.

Graduates of the course studied maintenance of integrated airborne equipment, and earned credits toward an associate degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force.

Mayoral will now serve at Langley Air Force Base, Va., with the 1st Component Repair Squadron.

Betty Stechmann, Dottie Overal, Alamae Lambert, Alicia Caddell, Margo Frommeyer, Barbara Fitch, and Piccola Dietrich dance to "If They Could See Me Now" under black light, which cast a very dramatic effect.

Monica Parker entertains as only she can as she taps through a hat dance, and sings a sweet "I Am 18 Going on 17."

And Teddy and Betty Stechmann, Lana Noonan, Terry Simpson, Margo Frommeyer, Bunk Gardner, Andy Baxer, and Mark Ladner to a zippy dance studded with catchy one-liners. I especially enjoyed this "word-dance" for its freshness and originality.

Rounding out the show is the technical crew, including script writer Jeanne-Marie Bell, she is one multi-talented lady; directors and producers Dick and Barbara Jo Fitch; assistant director Teddy Stechmann; accompanists Beth Watkins and Ingrid Ling; choreographer Piccola Dietrich; lights, Pam Baumgartner and Danny Guillema; sound, Russel Fitch; tickets, Norma Simpson; concessions, Bubby Dietrich; programs and posters, Betty Stechmann; and publicity, Edith Bierhorst Back.

"Fantasy Bayou" is a short show; any longer and my sides would have hurt from all the laughing! I highly recommend it for a respite from the summer doldrums. The warmth radiating from this friendly group of down-home folks is contagious! The show, which opened Friday at the Waveland Civic Center on Coleman Avenue and repeated again Saturday, will play again Friday and Saturday at Sept. 3 and 4 at 8 p.m. each evening, as well as Sunday, Sept. 5 at 3 p.m. Tickets are $3 at the door.

Mississippi State schedules welcome back party Sept. 10

Mississippi State University will welcome a new school year and some 2,500 future students with the "Discovery: MSU" weekend Sept. 10-11 on campus.

The traditional "Welcome Back" party for enrolled students will be combined this year with other traditional activities designed to acquaint high school and junior college students with the university.

Events will get under way at 6:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 10 with a pep rally at "Five Points," across University Drive from Scott Field and the Bost Extension Center.

MSU Cheerleaders and Bully, along with the Famous

Maroon Band, will help ignite school spirit in preparation for the first home football game Saturday, Sept. 11 against Arkansas State University.

An open-air concert featuring rock singer Pam Tillis and her band will begin at 7:30 p.m. adjacent to the pep rally site.

On Saturday, an academic fair will be held from 9-11:30 a.m. on the Drill Field.

In an informal atmosphere, education, food and fun will be blended as more than 50 departments use displays, exhibits and demonstrations to explain their academic offerings.

Free popcorn and ice cream will be available and the MSU Stage Band and Madrigal Singers will provide entertainment.

A limited number of $3 tickets will be sold on a first-come basis to visiting students who attend the fair. The ticket table will be located in the center of the field.

The 3:30 p.m. MSU-Arkansas State football game at Scott Field will conclude the weekend's activities.

For additional information on "Discovery: MSU," write in care of the Office of College and School Relations, Box NN, Mississippi State, Miss. 39762, or telephone Mississippi toll-free 1-800-222-1810, extension 3076.

The River's faculty numbers more than 100

Pearl River College this year is employing 96 full-time and 13 part-time instructors at its main campus and its three centers.

Thirty-eight full-time and 12 part-time academic instructors will be working at the Poplarville campus along with 28 vocational-technical instructors. The administration and supporting staff totals 61 at the main campus.

The Forrest County Center at Hattiesburg has 15 faculty members, an administrator and counselor. The Hancock and Lamar County Centers have seven and eight faculty members respectively and an administrator and counselor.

Dr. Marvin White said at a recent faculty meeting, "We are about to wrap-up our $750,000 building program."

Renovation and additions have been added to the school cafeteria, student center and Shiver's gym.

"I think these renovations will improve our image and make your job more pleasant," Dr. White said. A walk-in bookstore and a modern grill have been added to the structure, which is located in the middle of the campus.

White said that the last of the state appropriations for construction has been spent, however, plans are being considered to build and or renovate one of the dormitories to provide more living space on campus.

New academic faculty members joining the PRC staff this fall are Linda Buffington, Anne Greene and Dorothy Porter. Part-time instructors include Dr. Arlene Roberts, Glenda Truax and Maxine Dement.

New vocational-technical instructors include Billy Ray Fairley, Louis Fairley, Richard Ousse, Julie Hammon, Carl Hicks and Frank Stafford.

DON'T FORGET RESIDENCES—Residential land requires 6.95 acres of the three acres of land required to support each Mississippian for a year, totaling more than 77,000 acres in the state. Residential land may include single-family housing, modular homes, duplexes, triplexes and low, high rise and garden apartment dwellings. The historic Hayden Reynolds home in Starkville, built in 1890, and pictured here, represents a symbol of this important land use in Mississippi. This and other land uses are outlined in Cooperative Extension Service publication 99, available on request from P. O. Box 5405, Mississippi State, Miss. 39762.

Energy Answers from Mississippi Energy Extension Center

Q. There's a man building an underground house in our neighborhood. I've been over to watch a couple of times and I'm curious to know how the dirt all around it is going to affect the temperature inside. Isn't dirt a pretty poor insulating material?

A. Yes, dirt is a poor insulator. Three feet of earth has about the same R-value as one and a half inches of the kind of fiberglass batt you'd put in the walls of a traditional house. It's a little better at insulating when it's perfectly dry, but the real value of an earth cover is that it moderates temperature changes.

Experts in earth-sheltered housing say a three-foot thick earth cover around a 1,600 square foot house has a heat storage capacity of about 300,000 BTU. The weight of the earth and its storage capacity make heat loss from an underground building less noticeable. The dirt also acts as a heat sink when the earth is cooler than you want the house to be.

Vapor barriers, insulation, and waterproofing are all required in underground houses. In addition to the earth covering.

Q. Any projections for what part coal will play in our immediate energy future?

A. Coal could supply 44 percent of the expected growth in energy requirements between 1980 and 1990, according to a report by the International Energy Agency.

For more information, or to get an answer to your energy question, contact the toll-free Energy Answerline, 1-800-222-8311.

Doing MORE...With LESS! THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS

MAKE YOUR OWN TASTY WINES!

It's possible to make wine from almost anything that grows... and that includes carrots, dandelions, persimmons, blackberries, tomatoes, apples, potatoes, and more. You don't need lots of expensive equipment either, or a great deal of room. In fact, Gary Miller makes his favorite wine—from honey—in his one-room apartment in the city.

Furthermore, though Gary's super-simple directions might drive an experienced winemaker up the wall, they do work. Here's how he does it.

First, get a gallon jug, preferably glass but plastic will do. Try to avoid containers that have held acidic products like vinegar. Wash the jug with soap (not detergent), rinse it with baking soda and water, and finally, rinse it again with clear water.

Then put a pint and a half to two pints of honey in the jug (the more honey you add—within these limits—the stronger the wine will be), fill it with warm water, and shake the container.

Now, add a pack or cake of yeast—the same type you use for making bread—and leave the jug uncapped and sitting in a sink overnight. The solution will foam out and get pretty sticky at this point.

After the mess quiets down a bit, you'll need to put a top on the jug. This cover must be a device that will allow gas to escape from the jug without letting air get in. The easiest way to fill this need would be to buy an inexpensive fermentation lock at a winemaking supply store. A lock comes complete with a cork, so get the right size to fit your jug's opening. As an alternative, you can simply buy a cork (most hardware stores have a variety of sizes) that fits your bottle. Drill a hole in it that will just allow a 1/2" to 3/4" plastic or rubber hose to pass through, stick the hose through the hole, and stop up the jar with this apparatus, letting the loose end of the tube hang down into a glass or bowl that's filled with water.

Now put your jug of brew away for about two weeks or until it's finished "working." It's ready to bottle when the bubbles stop coming to the top.

Old wine bottles are best. You must use corks (not too tight) to seal the wine... since they'll allow small amounts of gas to escape. Honey wine is ready to drink just about any time.

You can use the same process with fruits (and some vegetables), except that you'll have to extract the juice and, maybe, add some sugar. You'll also find that most fruit will start to ferment without the help of added yeast and will be better that way. Fruit and vegetable wines generally taste best after at least three weeks of aging. Most are even better after six months and up to two years.

Here's a recipe for an old-timey favorite, dandelion wine.

Early in the morning when the dew is on the flowers, pick one gallon of perfect, open dandelion blossoms. Put the washed flowers in a two-gallon or larger open crock or new plastic bucket, and pour boiling water over them. Cover the receptacle with cheesecloth or a towel, and let it sit at room temperature for three days. Then squeeze all the juice out of the flowers, throw them away, and save the liquid.

Put the wine-to-be into a big pot and add 3 pounds of sugar... 3 or 4 lemons, chopped (include the skin, seeds, juice, and all)... and 3 or 4 oranges, chopped. Boil the mixture for 30 minutes in the covered pot, cool it to lukewarm, pour it into a crock or clean bucket, and add—stirring with a wooden spoon—1 1/2 to 2 packages of table-spoons of yeast.

Cover the container with cheesecloth and let the brew sit for two or three weeks, or till the bubbling stops. Filter the liquid through the cheesecloth to strain out any chunks. Then pour it into clean bottles and cork it tightly. Dandelion wine is best when left for two or three months before first tasting.
